RENT REVIEW

These are the facts:

Ontario's new Residential Premises Rent Review Act affects most landlords and tenants in the province. The act allows for a review of the amount of rent a landlord may charge.

Landlords and tenants should be aware of their rights and responsibilities under this legislation. The Ontario Government is in the process of establishing rent review offices in major centres across the province. Review officers will hear disputes on rent increases by both landlords and tenants.

A rent review board is being established to hear appeals by tenants and landlords against the decisions of rent review officers.

What does the act cover?

- apartments • houses • townhouses • duplexes
- triplexes • rooming houses • mobile-home sites
- rent-geared-to-income units

What are the exceptions?

- certain non-profit housing or non-profit co-operatives
- units in a hotel, motel or vacation home which are rented for a seasonal or temporary period not exceeding four months
- buildings that were first occupied as residential premises on or after Jan. 1, 1976.
- commercial premises

How does it work?

If you have entered into or renewed a tenancy agreement which became effective between July 30, and Dec. 31, 1975, inclusive, you should be aware that:

The maximum rent increase for such agreements cannot exceed eight per cent of the rent charged during the last full month prior to Aug. 1, 1975, unless:

- (a) the tenant and landlord agree on a higher rate of rent, or
- (b) the landlord obtains the necessary approval from a rent review officer.

A landlord may apply to a rent review officer for permission to increase rent more than eight per cent. A tenant may file an application with the landlord requiring him to justify any increase. These applications must be made by Jan. 31, 1976. Should a landlord and tenant agree on an increase in rent above the eight per cent guideline, they must complete and sign a rent increase agreement no later than Jan. 17, 1976. Copies of these agreements should be kept by both parties. Forms may be obtained by writing Rent Review, Box 580, Postal Station F, Toronto, M4Y 2L8. Or you may wish to use the form published recently in this newspaper.

However, a tenant may cancel such an agreement by completing a statement of revocation within 30 days of the signing of the agreement.

By signing a rent increase agreement the tenant waives the right to appeal the increase during the period July 30, to Dec. 31, 1975. The tenant also waives the right to collect a rebate of rent as provided for in this act, other than the amount of rebate, if any, stated in the rent increase agreement. Rent increase agreements do not apply for any period after Dec. 31, 1975, and do not constitute a waiver of the tenant's right to appeal the amount of rent charged on or after Jan. 1, 1976.

The rent increase agreements do not relieve the landlord from his obligation to obtain approval from a rent review officer for any rent increase charged on or after Jan. 1, 1976 that is more than eight per cent of the July, 1975 rent.

Where the landlord and tenant do not agree on a rent increase above the eight per cent, the tenant is entitled to a rebate of any rent paid in excess of eight per cent by Feb. 16, 1976. If the landlord fails to make such a rebate the tenant may apply to a rent review officer.

If a tenancy agreement becomes effective or is renewed between Jan. 1, and July 31, 1976, inclusive, you should know:

A landlord who wishes an increase of more than eight per cent must file an application with his rent review officer and notify the tenant at least 60 days before the increase is scheduled to become effective. In respect to those rental increases taking effect between Jan. 1, and Feb. 29, 1976, the application must be made by Jan. 31, 1976.

A tenant who wishes to appeal an increase has 60 days in which to file an application with his landlord requiring him to justify the increase.

In case of a hearing, a date will be set by the rent review officer and both landlord and tenant will be notified.

After the hearing the rent review officer will establish the rent, and may order retroactive adjustments.

What is a tenancy agreement?

A tenancy agreement gives a tenant the right to occupy a particular dwelling, or to renew the right to rent a particular dwelling. The agreement can be written, verbal or implied. In other words, even if you don't have a written lease you are covered by the legislation.

For written agreements, the important date is the date the agreement comes into effect, not the date on which the agreement is signed.

Rent review legislation is tied to the dwelling on an annual basis with the July, 1975, rent taken as the base rent.

Who attends hearings?

Tenants, landlords or their representatives should attend rent review hearings. Failure to appear or be represented removes the right to appeal the rent review officer's decision.

The hearings will be informal, and every effort will be made to keep the procedures simple so that individuals may conduct their own cases.

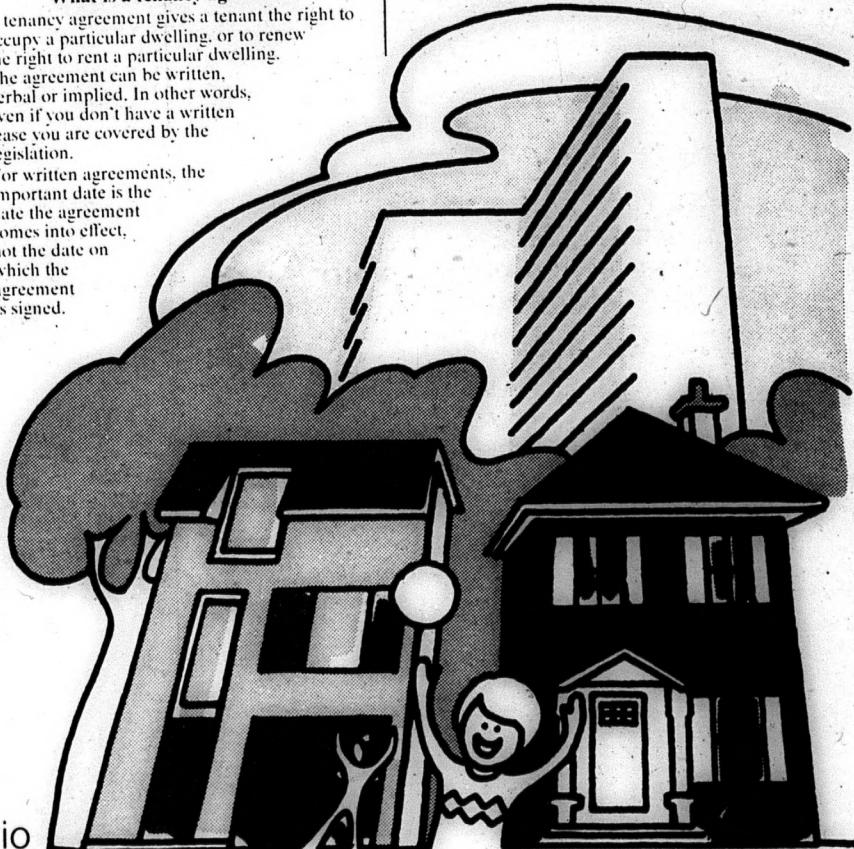

A rent review officer has the power to call witnesses and to order the production of the necessary documents.

Tenants should be aware that, should they appeal their rent increase to a rent review officer, the officer could permit the landlord a greater increase than the one originally demanded.

Where a landlord has been required to justify an existing or proposed rent increase, the rent review officer may adjust the rent to an amount below the original rent level.

Until the rent review mechanism is in place, please do not telephone. You can obtain further information on the Residential Premises Rent Review Act by writing:

Carl Heath going after wardenship

HASTINGS - For the first time in 32 years, a reeve of Hastings may be serving as warden for the County of Northumberland.

Reeve Carl Heath said last week he had entered his name as a candidate to succeed the 1975 warden, Mrs. Dorothy Brintnell.

Reeve Lou Kelly, in 1944, was the last village official to hold the position.

At press time Monday there was still only one other candidate for the post, the reeve of Port Hope.

The election will be held Tuesday, Jan. 20 in Cobourg.

Reeve Heath said he has already completed much of his campaigning, with only Hamilton township and the town of Cobourg left to go. Only the county councillors - the reeves and deputy-reeves of the municipalities - are allowed to vote in the annual election.

The reeve said he had never held so high a position in politics before, but had considered running in last year's election.

"I was luke-warm. I wasn't really figuring on running but you have to make yourself concerned and let people know you are," he said.

He said his decision to run wouldn't come as a shock to most of the members of the county council since "I had made it known through this last year or so that I was thinking about it (running)".

"I think I'm soon going to get out of municipal politics, for a while anyway, and I'm on the ladder now. I figure if I don't try now, I'd probably feel in four or five years from now that I wish I had tried."

The reeve said he had been concerned last year there may be some backlash from discussions over a possible move by the village of Hastings from Northumberland to Peterborough County.

He felt the issue was now "pretty well dropped" and expected no resentment from the county councillors.

GRIT HOPEFULS VISIT AREA

Two of the leading candidates for the leadership of the Liberal Party of Ontario will be in Belleville within the next few days.

Dr. Stuart Smith of Hamilton will be in the city Thursday evening and David Peterson of London will visit Sunday afternoon.

Both will meet delegates and alternate delegates to the leadership convention slated to take place in Toronto January 23 and 25.

The sessions will take the form of wine and cheese parties in the officer's mess of the Belleville Armouries.

Among those eligible to attend from the area are Hastings-Peterborough Provincial Liberal Association president Don Mullan of Marmora, association past-president Jim Watson of Madoc, association secretary Wilma Brady of Marmora, Marmora and District Liberal Association president Lillian O'Connor of Marmora, and alternate delegates, Maurice Gouhal and Mike Quinn of Madoc and Breen O'Connor of Marmora.

Struck from the rear

Driver of the second car was Donald Fridgen, 28, of Peterborough.

Damage in the accident was estimated at $200 to the Gillett car and $700 to the Fridgen vehicle.

Police said a car, owned by Brian McConnachie, 18, of 321 George St. Tweed, was parked unattended in front of the restaurant when it was struck on the front end by a second vehicle, causing an estimated $500 damage.

Eye witnesses gave police a description of the second car, which failed to remain at the scene of the accident, and the driver was apprehended about an hour later.

After more than 20 years as a journalist, you would think I would be used to Canadians being ignored by the American press.

Canadians are treated as poor cousins by the major newspapers in the United States. We are looked upon as inarticulate clods who wouldn't know the north end of a cow going south in an east wind.

But I expected more from the New York Times, the paper that is supposed to print all the news that's fit to print. They still carry this slogan on the masthead.

Just a few weeks ago, the paper carried a story on Page 2 with this headline: Increasingly, The U.S. Is Breadbasket To the World.

Such a pompous, arrogant statement. The article quotes production figures in wheat, for instance, and lumps both Canada and the United States in a North American statistic.

Who, I ask, went to the World Food Conference more than a year ago and pledged to double food aid contributions to the United Nations? Canada, that's who.

And all the while, the nations at that conference were waiting for the United States to take a leading role. But the U.S. did not.

Who sneaked away during that conference, flew to Egypt, an Arab nation, and sold 200,000 tons of wheat to that country? Earl Butz, that's who, the U.S. secretary of agriculture. While democratic leaders at the conference in Rome were trying to increase international food aid by one million tons.

"North America today finds itself with an almost monopolistic control of the world's exportable grain supplies," the New York Times said.

"...the ever-growing dependence on North America by the rest of the world cannot continue for much longer."

So it's just North America, is it?

Only in the final two paragraphs of the article does Canada get mentioned as a separate entity, as a nation unto itself.

"This prospective excess of import needs over exportable supplies could put the United States and Canada (finally, we get equal billing) in the uncomfortable position of having to decide on who would get food and who would not. In effect, the two governments would find themselves in the unenviable position of operating a global food rationing program.

"The two governments have not consciously sought this responsibility but it is, nevertheless, a prospect with which they must now reckon."

So says the New York Times, one of the most influential publications in the free world.

No wonder Canadians get irritated at the attitude displayed by our big neighbour to the south. We know how uncomfortable it is to sleep beside an elephant. When that elephant breaks wind, we suffer quite a windstorm.

It was just three or four weeks ago that Prime Minister Trudeau was visibly angry in the Commons about remarks made by William Porter, retiring U.S. ambassador to Canada. Mr. Porter, duly reported by the Canadian media, made his remarks over a drink or two in Ottawa with selected members of the press.

Mr. Porter said that recent decisions by Canada have reached a bad turn of events and he wanted to put Canadians on notice that nationalistic attitudes in this country were causing alarm in congressional and media circles in the U.S.

Well, no wonder Canadians are seeking nationalistic goals. The media in the U.S. consistently ignore Canada and Canadians until we now rub the elephant the wrong way. I have never been a Yankee-baiter. My attitude is that if we must have a big neighbour, then we have the best one in the world in the United States.

But it's time Canada was given her rightful place in the eyes and ears of Americans through a responsible press in that country. We're just sick, sore and tired of being treated like a banana republic with no more stability than a wet noodle.

When it comes to helping feed a hungry world, Canadians are in the forefront and will remain in that position with no thanks to our flatulating mammal below the forty-ninth parallel.

And here we are in 1976

By Claire Hoy
of Toronto Sun

We made it. Or, at least most of us did and we've got this bright New Year to look forward to. 1976.

Has kind of a nice ring, don't you think? Sort of makes you anxious to leave all your nasty 1975 thoughts behind and start all over again.

Aren't you glad the New Year has arrived? You should be if you aren't. Tradition and all that. Isn't this the one season when people are actually friendly? Strangers wish you Happy New Year. Champagne flows. Balloons flood the party rooms. Everybody kisses everybody. It's, well, simply fantastic.

But now that that's all behind us, we must face reality. Chances are it's not going to be the best year ever.

You see, we've got these few nagging problems which didn't get solved in 1975 and won't go away in 1976, plus some brand new headaches brought to you courtesy of various levels of government. Chances are, thanks to the federal Anti-Inflation Board, you're going to have a tough time getting anything more than 8 or 10 per cent more money, a sum designed to let you fall still further behind increases in the cost of living.

But unless you're the kind of person who lives somewhere, buys food and clothing, travels, quaffs the odd brew, believes in electric power and even likes to shop on Sundays, then none of this should bother you.

To the rest of you out there, however, you'll know 1976 has arrived first time you try to buy something which has provincial sales tax on it -- which is almost anything. You'll note it's now seven per cent instead of five per cent.

Not to worry though. Your property taxes

Davis predicts strong recovery

Premier William Davis predicted a strong recovery for the Ontario economy in the first quarter of 1976 but warned if the public and government don't come to grips with inflation our prosperity could be "seriously threatened."

"I want to emphasize that 1976 does not loom as being an easy year," Davis said in his New Year's message. "But it should not consist of circumstances that cannot be met if we show resolve, cohesion and the sense of purpose of our forebears have shown during other trying times in this nation's history."

Davis said it is the responsibility of political leaders to be "realistic and honest about the challenges and to make the facts abundantly clear."

will be shooting up much more than that, thanks largely to a provincial government decision to hold its spending increases down to 10 per cent, less than half what it's averaged the last few years. Nobody knows how much that will mean in tax hikes but Treasurer Darcy McKeough concedes they'll be substantial."

For those of you who use hydro, the price for that privilege is going up 22 per cent, and if you weren't quite able to scrape up that down payment for your first home in 1975, too bad, because that $1,500 first-time homebuyers' grant ends with the old year and since real estate officials predict the average price of a bungalow in the Toronto area will be at least $60,000, that makes it even tougher.

However, you renters out there will get a break, if of course you're fortunate enough to find a place to rent in a town with a two or three per cent vacancy rate. Retroactive to last July, landlords can only raise your rent eight per cent a year without going through the hassle of justifying it before a rent review board. Of course the new bureaucracy needed to police this bill is going to cost many millions...but nothing's perfect.

Naturally, you won't be able to shop in the big retail stores on Sundays or most holidays -- stores can be fined up to $10,000 for ignoring that law -- but the small milk stores will be open so you'll be able to pick up those things you need at premium prices.

Supermarket officials estimate food prices should go up to 10 to 15 per cent in 1976 and there's no reason to believe clothing prices, entertainment and travel costs won't match that.

And oh yes, let's not forget those of you who want to drive. You'll likely pay more for your gasoline, but because the law will make you drive slower on the highways -- 60 instead of 70, 50 instead of 60 -- you should use less gas and maybe save a few bucks. Naturally you'll remember to buckle up for safety. If you don't you could be fined $20. And don't forget the tax rebate on new cars which saved car buyers an average $250. It's gone. Actually, 1976 looks so bad to the provincial government that the cabinet has planned a series of meetings with municipal councils and school boards beginning this week, just so they can tell them face-to-face how bad it is.

Ma Bell, as expected, will be coming through with higher telephone rates for you but you can always use that as an excuse to get out of calling your mother-in-law.

But really, 1976 doesn't have to be all bad. In March, the minimum wage goes up a quarter to $2.65 an hour and who knows, you could win $100,000 in the Wintario lottery or something. Then maybe you could afford to live here. At least until 1977.

Missing tot found in parking lot

By Karen Jones

Twenty-two-month-old Bradley Phillips son of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Phillips, R.R. 4, Madoc, was recently the victim of a hide and seek game during a church service.

Little Bradley was playing hide and seek with other children in the church basement when he ventured out of the church and ended up at the parking lot of Armstrong's Garage, where he was found coatless and crying by Harry Dennis of R.R. 4, Madoc.

In the meantime, Bradley was the object of an hour-long search.

Mr. Dennis took the child under his coat and called the police.

Upon police arrival, they noticed the unidentified "babysitter" running down the street and upon summoning her, the child was returned to the "babysitter" and then to the parents.

The whole system is suspect

OTTAWA — (SF) — There's nothing like a snowy winter's evening with the fire crackling, and the pages of the Auditor-General's annual report into government spending close at hand for amusement.

Former Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson was perpetually getting into trouble with the government because cabinet claims that he criticized policies instead of sticking merely to the exposure of financial foul-ups.

After this current thumper from Auditor-General J.J. Macdonell, cabinet might well be glad to get back to the old days of Bonaventure refits. Macdonell claims that the whole government system of accounting is suspect, and he belabors the civil service for spending wildly without regard to cost.

Take rented office space for example. In 1969-1970 the government spent $40 million on leasing working quarters, $21 million of that in the national Capital Region. By 1974-75 the government was spending $43 million a year renting office space in the Ottawa-Hull region alone. For all leases, the total was more than a

By Peter
Ward

$100 million. That's a 250 per cent increase in rented space — and not even the civil service can have expanded at that rate. Even allowing 50 per cent for inflation over 5 years, it is still an unexplainably high boost in rental spending.

Auditor-General Macdonell is kind enough to point out, though, that before 1975-76 is finished, the government will have paid $5 million for leases on office space which isn't finished and isn't occupied. Oh to be a landlord for the civil service.

In Winnipeg, Halifax-Dartmouth, and Fort Simpson, the government paid more than $500,000 for finished office space that wasn't occupied. What a way to run the nation, the largest renter of accommodations.

Wonders like that would be met with swift retribution had they occurred in the private business world. In business, as in civil service, mistakes are made. But in the civil service, you don't fire an executive. You promote, or you transfer. One of the favorite sayings in Ottawa claims that when heads roll, they roll up hill.

BILL SMILEY

Hockey Night in Canada

By BILL SMILEY

WE ARE well into another season of what passes these days for that once-thrilling Canadian sport of hockey.

Far more interesting than being a spectator at games will be watching from the sidelines some renewed and determined attempts to decrease the potential mayhem in the former sport.

As any intelligent eight-year-old knows, hockey is no longer a sport, it is an entertainment, superior to professional wrestling in this department only because it is faster, bloodier, and most of the participants, though not all, are not fat and middle-aged. Some are fat and young.

Some are also middle-aged. Some are old enough to be grandfathers. And 80 per cent of the so-called athletes in this new form of Grand Guignol vaudeville are grossly over-paid.

A few discerning sports writers, and a good many former fans of the game, are sick at heart over what has happened to what was once the fastest and most thrilling game on earth.

The great majority of the so-called fans, however, along with most sports writers and nearly all of management, deride any attempt to restore the skills and thrills of what used to be the most skillful and thrillful sport of them all — professional hockey.

Perhaps that is because the current crop of fans consists of yahoos looking for blood, the sports writers are sycophants looking for an angle, and the owners are stupid, as they have always been, looking only for a buck.

At any rate, Ontario has a new Attorney-General, Roy McMurtry, a former athlete of some ability, and he is determined to stamp out the viciousness that has turned pro hockey into a Roman circus.

He had the appalling audacity to declare publicly that assault and battery on the ice would be treated the same as it is on the streets, with a criminal charge.

He took the unparalleled step of putting cops in the arenas and laying charges against the goons who try to decapitate an opponent with a stick, or emerge from a spearing duel with the enemy's guts wrapped around the point of their sticks.

McMurtry is making political hay out of it, but I, and a host of others, don't care, and say: "Go to it, boy."

As expected, his edicts have been greeted with hoots of scorn by the yahoos, the sycophants and the manipulators.

Or as Variety, the showbiz magazine, might put it in one of its succinct headlines: "HOCK JOCKS MOCK SOCKS." Translated, that would mean that hockey people make fun of any attempt to stop the fighting and violence in the game.

Solidly behind McMurtry, however, is a majority of the people remotely interested in the game: the better sports writers, who have seen it go steadily downhill; kids who want to play hockey for fun, without being terrorized; parents of kids who play hockey; real fans of the game, who have seen their favorite sport turned into a carnage of clowns.

Surely even the robber barons of hockey, the owners, with their 19th century mentality, can see the handwriting on the wall, large and clear. The game is going down the drain.

Let me give some fringes. When I was a youth, our town had a Junior A team. They played it fast and tough and clean. The referees jumped on slashing, spearing, boarding, kneeing. Fights were infrequent. In a town of 4,000, there were 1,500 at every game. A hundred cars would accompany the fans to play-off games 50 miles away.

Today, I live in a town of 11,000, which boasts a pretty fair Junior B team. The crowds at games run around two or three hundred.

Hockey Night In Canada used to bind this whole nation together, from radio days well into television. Its ratings have dropped disastrously.

What's happened? A lot of things. First, the quality has gone down and the price has gone up. That's a no-no in any business.

Sixty per cent of the pros today couldn't have made a fair-to-middling senior amateur team 25 years ago.

Arena owners, egged on by greedy players and those parasites, their agents, have hoisted the cost of tickets to the point where ticket scalpers are committing suicide.

When the players are all millionaires, and the arenas are half empty, maybe the morons who control the sport will get the message.

About doctors

During a recent shinny game, a juvenile hockey player in Madoc was injured. I called one of the Madoc doctors to come down to the arena and he refused. I went to the Medical Centre to see if a doctor was there. Finding the door unlocked, I proceeded inside and to my surprise there wasn't soul in the building - yet it was unlocked. Finally, I drove to another doctor's house and he said to get an ambulance.

I feel that with three doctor's in a town this size that we should deserve better service from them. This hockey player could have had more serious an injury - that might have been permanent or even deadly! Yet, the doctors in this town leave you the impression that "they could care less". This is only one of the many incidents that have happened, where these doctors have refused their services. What is the purpose of having a doctor on duty if he doesn't provide his services when needed?

The other thing that really concerned me was the fact that with the Medical Centre being left unattended while unlocked left it handy for any individual to make himself at home to any medicine or harmful drugs.

As one concerned citizen to another, I would like other opinions.

Harry Dennis.

P.S. In spite of the running around I did, I'd like to thank Dr. Derry for giving his service.

About police

I am writing to state my opinion on the manners of certain policemen in Madoc. I feel all policemen should use manners and treat the public with respect if they would like to receive it in return. A certain officer showed bad manners towards my husband recently, and I felt it was totally unnecessary. I know he had the right to stop us or any other person, but this gives him no right to be insulting or rude to the public. It is people like these that give our policemen the bad names they so much dislike. He is no higher or no better than us.

I have been reluctant in writing this because some people feel if you express your feelings in writing to the public about your friendly policemen that they will in return "make things difficult". But I have beliefs in freedom of speech and I feel the policemen in this area are good and are here to help us, not to "make things difficult". Why do they feel being rude looks impressive? It proves nothing. I ask one last question, what right does the policeman have, to turn around and do the same thing he stops a person for?

Mrs. Teresa Guenette.

A rear-end collision Saturday on Highway 7, one mile east of Madoc, has left an estimated $700 damage to vehicles driven by James Clemens, 42, of Ottawa, and Hilton Burleigh, 43, of Kemptville.

An RR 1, Flinton youth was treated and released from the Northbrook Clinic Friday after the car he was driving struck a tree along the Flinton Road, north of Highway 7.

Police said John Henry Bovard, 16, was southbound when the right wheel of the car went off onto the shoulder of the road. The car was pulled into a snowbank and struck a tree, resulting in damages estimated at $300.

I'm not a gambler

is my TD Retirement Savings Plan.

Sure I've taken some risks in my life. But one thing I won't gamble on is my future. The stakes are just too high. That's why I started looking into retirement savings plans, and I found out they're not all alike.

The one that made the difference for me is the Toronto Dominion Retirement Savings Deposit. It has all the benefits of a bank deposit built right in and is not subject to stock market fluctuations. I can put money into it whenever I want; my interest is compounded twice yearly, and as long as it stays in the plan, it's tax free. The TD RSD earns a higher interest rate than a savings account, and, if I move, my RSD moves with me, to any of the TD branches across Canada.

But what's best of all is that I know my money is as secure as the TD Bank itself. And that means my future is secure. So if you're interested in a safe bet, start your TD Retirement Savings Deposit today.

New Ontario Building Code law throughout province

The new Ontario Building Code is now law! All new construction in the province, as well as major repairs and alterations to existing buildings, must now conform to the code.

The new code relies substantially on requirements contained in the National Building Code, supplemented by extensive research and consultation in Ontario. At present, most of Ontario's more than 800 municipalities has its own building code.

Sidney Handelman, Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations, said there are five major public benefits to be realized from the code.

"First, it will facilitate introduction of new building materials, designs and methods of construction. A single commission made up of highly skilled people will be charged with responsibility for reviewing and evaluating new building materials, design and construction methods and enabling the good ones to go into general use. This procedure should help speed up needed innovation in the construction industry.

"Secondly, the single code for materials will create a larger, uniform market which, in turn, should encourage economies of scale for manufacturers. There appears to be significant potential for cost savings which may help lessen the impact of inflation on new housing.

"Third, this code will help the handicapped by establishing standards of access to most new public and commercial buildings.

"Fourth, the code contains new insulation requirements for housing, to help conserve energy. These requirements are an interim measure, pending more detailed energy conservation measures which will apply to all new buildings.

"And finally, this single code will make it much easier for contractors, engineers, architects, tradesmen and building officials to develop a common understanding of building requirements. For the first time, province-wide educational programs can be developed on the various aspects of building requirements in Ontario. A co-ordinated approach is now being prepared."

Plumbing installations will continue to be governed by Regulation 647 of the Ontario Water Resources Act. Mr. Handelman said his officials are reviewing this regulation as well as the Canadian Plumbing Code published earlier this year, with the aim of integrating plumbing requirements into the Building Code. The same course will be followed with the new National Fire Code which is expected to be released shortly.

Mr. Handelman emphasized that the code will not transfer power from municipalities to the province.

"I think it is important to note that the day-to-day administration of the code will continue to be a local responsibility. The general quality of building inspection by municipal officials is high and they have accumulated a great deal of valuable experience as well as a working knowledge of the builders in their area.

$5,000 damage two-car crash

An estimated $5,000 damage resulted Christmas Eve from a two-car collision in the village of Tweed. Madoc provincial police said cars driven by Charles Way, 17, of Pringle St., Tweed, and Brian Kehoe, of RR 3, Tweed, collided in front of the Becker's Milk Store as the Way car was about to make a left hand turn.

Fails to negotiate curve

A single-car accident Saturday, Dec. 27 on Highway 7, one mile east of Deloro, has left an estimated $750 damage to a car driven by William Beach, 22, of Metcalfe St. in Tweed.

Police said the car failed to negotiate a turn on the road and entered the north ditch.

Beach received cuts in the mishap but did not require medical care. A passenger in the car was not injured.

Bert Jones heads P.C.'s

An exceptionally large group of Madoc Progressive Conservatives attended the election of officer's meeting at the Council Chambers on Friday evening, January 9th, 1976. Every seat in the Chambers was accounted for.

The important Presidency, vacated by Terry Pigden, was sought by three members, Presley Nickle, Bert Jones, and Harry Brown. Elected for the position was Bert Jones, with Pres Nickle as 1st Vice-president and Harry Brown as 2nd vice-president.

Gardener Stevenson was elected as Secretary and Ray Binch as Treasurer. Appointed as Directors of the Madoc Progressive Conservative Association were Tom Burnside, Clayton Smith, Tim Bronson, Bill Derry, Pete Pigden, Frank Downey, Dr. Cliff Derry, George Devolin and Ed Armstrong.

Senator George S. White was appointed unanimously as Honourary President.

Speakers at the meeting were Terry Pigden (newly-elected President of the Hastings-Peterborough Conservative Association) and Kelvin Kincaid (President of the Hastings Federal Conservative Association). Terry Pigden spoke on Provincial issues, while Kel Kincaid talked about the upcoming election of the P.C. leader replacing Robert Stanfield.

It is felt by the Madoc P.C.'s that Madoc will be on the map in Provincial and Federal matters, as two of their members are Presidents of their Association in their respective riding - Kel Kincaid, President of the Conservative Federal Riding, and Terry Pigden, President of the Conservative Provincial Riding.

Inclement weather keeps seniors attendance down

The Senior Citizens Club No. 473 held their first meeting of the year on the seventh of January at two o'clock in the United Church basement. There was a small gathering on account of the inclement weather.

The President, Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, welcomed the members. A new member, Mrs. Daisy Vinnicombe, joined the Club.

The meeting opened by all repeating the Lord's Prayer, the reading of two poems, "A New Leaf", and "In the New Year". The minutes were read and adopted. Correspondence was dealt with. A card of thanks was received from Sylvia Bailey, acknowledging the donation toward sports. Also a thank-you note was read from the promoters of the Santa Claus Parade for the Club's donation. Another thank-you note was received from the Nursing Home for the donation at Christmas time. The Club enjoyed the party held there. A card of thanks was received from the caterer of "Gay Lea" Products for the Christmas dinner on the 17 of December which was served to the Club. The birthday song was sung for the birthday of Mrs. Foster. The Program Conveners for the next meeting, January 21st, are Mrs. Foster and George Moorcroft.

The meeting closed with the singing of "The Queen". A social time was spent playing games. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Hostesses for the next meeting are Mrs. Lilly Empey, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. Margaret Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Carman, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Barker.

In addition to other places of business in Madoc, Sam Danford and Sons Ltd. recently made improvements to their

Six injured in collision near Cooper

Six persons were taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital Friday evening as a result of a two-vehicle collision on a Township road, near Cooper.

Taken to hospital were both drivers of the vehicles, 17-year-old Donald Blake of Tweed, who was under intensive care with fractures to both legs, a chest wall contusion and facial lacerations, and William Randy Rose, 22, of R.R. 3, Madoc, who was listed in satisfactory condition with lacerations and fractures. Passengers in both vehicles were also hospitalized. In the Blake vehicle were his two young nieces, five-year-old Anne Graham and her two-year-old sister, Vicki. Both are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Graham of R.R. 3, Madoc, and are listed in fair condition, suffering fractures and bruises. Passengers in the Rose vehicle were his 20-year-old wife, Fern, who suffered a concussion and facial lacerations, and their 18-month-old daughter, Tammy, who also suffered a concussion.

Blake was driving a 1972 Ford half-ton truck, which received $2,000 damages, and the Rose vehicle was a 1975 Ford half-ton truck. The two met head-on at the crest of a hill on the road at Lot 25, Concession 10, Madoc Township. Damages to the Rose vehicle were estimated at $3,000.

Const. Jerry Rollins of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, is continuing the investigation.

LITTLE DID WE EXPECT to dine with none other than King Henry VIII and his good wife and queen, Jane Seymour, over the weekend.

But dine with them we did as a 'time machine' seemed to whisk us back to the era of mediaeval banquets, during a three-day stay at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

We were in the 'other' Niagara attending a three-day meeting of the board of directors of the Ontario Weekly Newspapers Association, of which we are one of 12 directors.

And the banquet was all part of the fun arranged by our host, Lord Bill Poirier, publisher of the Grimsby Independent.

WHEN WE WOKE up Saturday morning, after spending the night at the famous Prince of Wales Hotel, we couldn't help wonder if we had really never left the head office of Cembal Publications in Marmora where we toil each Monday and Tuesday.

Everything, but everything, went wrong in that building a couple of weeks back. And here we were, almost reliving that nightmare.

The hotel room was devilish hot -- too hot! So you can image the surprise as we stepped from what felt like a dry sauna into the adjoining bathroom only to find it cold -- much too cold.

Colder, actually, than we realized.

After using the w.c. we discovered we couldn't flush it.

And in trying to shave, we found there was just no way we could get any cold water to help tone down the hot.

The cold water pipes, we're sad to relate, were frozen.

AFTER A HATCHET job on the whiskers, we returned to the room to discover the light that had worked so well the night before absolutely refused to go on during the early morning daylight hours.

But at least the phone worked -- as a call came in to make sure we were up.

Breakfast came next, but our order of a club breakfast (orange juice, bacon, eggs, toast and coffee) seemed to take forever.

The juice came quick. So did the coffee, and lots of it. But it was a good 30 minutes before the bacon and eggs arrived (did they really have to wait for the chickens to lay them?) and we had consumed it all before deciding to ask our waitress what had happened to our toast.

We still hadn't received it.

"Oh," she said, "we're out of toast."

"What about some rolls then?" we ask, shocked to hear that a restaurant could possibly be out of toast. It was a new one on us.

"Oh," she replied, "I'll see."

About 10 minutes later we had our toast -- it was now about 9:15 a.m. (we had started at 8 a.m.) and apparently one of the busboys was able to head down to a corner grocery store where he was able to buy a fresh supply of the staff of life.

Oh, yes -- the hotel management did get things fixed up in our room, and we do recommend the Prince as worth while visiting.

THE MEDIAEVAL BANQUET, which we enjoyed following morning and afternoon board meetings was just like the hearty occasion they were in the days of yore -- food, drink and laughter were supreme.

A glass of sherry greeted our arrival in the "Roucival" and it wasn't very long afterward that the doors opened to the "King", who having kissed a few of the ladies and having discoursed on the historical aspects of the place and occasion, appointed our party of 20 to the care of a goodly mistress for the evening. She cosseted us with King's ale, mead and wine, and more food than we could possibly eat.

The "first remove" featured broth, with fresh vegetables, spices and herbs, along with a doughy slab of bread

The second saw huge platters of whole chickens presented, and we could eat as many as we wanted -- all with our hands, of course. We had no knives or forks.

The chickens were large ones; we couldn't even finish one.

But they brought forth high platters of lamb, and a big roast young pig.

ONE OF THE LORDS was called upon to administer the King's sword; and one swift swoop later saw the pig minus its head and the platter being passed about for everyone to 'grap' himself a handful.

Trifle with sherry syllabub, cheese from Cheshire, Wiltshire and Somerset, apples and heartcakes, concluded the bill of fare, and most certainly, nobody went home hungry.

Entertainment for the four-hour meal was supplied by their Majesties (boy, can that Jane ever sing), Merlin the magician and the various lords and ladies in attendance who were summoned to the throne to pay penalties for an assortment of crimes.

Jim Dills, publisher of the Milton Canadian Champion among others, and president of OWNA, won "the most knobby knees" contest over some other lords, and took home the pig's head.

All in all it was a splendid evening and one well worth attending.

INTERESTED IN SELLING some merchandise?

If so, you should be interested in figures released by Clyde McDonald of the Cambridge, Ont., survey firm that has been engaged by OWNA to study the newspaper reading habits of the people of Ontario.

He noted that the average age of the man of the house reading weekly papers only, on a regular basis, was 46.5 per cent, while the average age of the man of the house reading a daily paper regular was 52.0.

Presenting the figures at the weekend board meeting, Mr. McDonald asked:

"Is there an inference in this data that a sizable proportion of younger adults retain an active interest in their community through the weekly newspaper, but have little or no interest in the content of the daily newspaper?

"Will these same younger couples sustain the habit as they grow older?

"Will this preference be communicated to the children in these families?

"Is this finding related to the gradual but consistent falling off in the circulation of daily newspapers as a ratio of householders in Canada and the concurrent growth of the weekly newspaper?"

The figures showed that, among men of the house in the 20-34 years of age bracket, 30 per cent were exclusive weekly readers, 35 per cent regular weekly readers and 29 per cent regular daily readers.

"The marketing question," Mr. McDonald said, "becomes whether these exclusive weekly families in an earlier stage of formation are better customers for the many goods and services being developed in today's media than the families which have reached a later stage of life cycle."

"It does not require too much effort to isolate those which are high potential in the group and those with lesser volume," he concluded.

Evergreens are prone to desiccation

Evergreens are prone to desiccation -- loss of moisture -- because they retain their foliage during the winter. Most susceptible are tender varieties that are exposed to sun, wind and ice, says D.B. McNeill, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

This hazard can be reduced by wrapping the plants now. The plants can either be wrapped entirely, or a protective screen can be placed around them. Either method is good, but screening evergreens is probably more desirable. Some homeowners hinge wood planks together at the top to provide a tent-shaped cover for upright evergreens.

"Air circulation around the plants is essential. Therefore, the wrapping material should allow for this," recommends Mr. McNeill. Burlap is excellent as it allows air circulation as well as reflecting the sun's rays. Transparent plastic is useful but should be tacked to posts placed around the plant. Black plastic should be avoided as it draws heat rather than reflecting it.

PARLIAMENT HILLIncreased gov't control

OTTAWA — (SF) — When Prime Minister Trudeau first began explaining how his government's program to beat inflation was different from the control scheme offered by the Conservatives, and rejected by the voters in 1974, he said he wanted "flexibility" in the Liberal system.

Well, the events of late 1975 certainly showed that there was flexibility in the Anti-Inflation Review Board plan constructed by the Trudeau technocrats. That issue of the raise for inside postal workers practically flexed the whole A.I.R.B. right out of business.

With the cost of living continuing to rise, there is growing skepticism on the part of organized labour about a program which they didn't like in the first place. Now that the regulations for the operation of the anti-inflation battle have been revealed, there is also opposition from business.

More and more one is tempted to ask the government why there wasn't a temporary freeze introduced, if Ottawa was really determined to use economic controls to break inflation's back.

By Peter
Ward

As things stand, there is a deepening feeling in many quarters that unfair treatment is being dished out. Why should postal workers be allowed a raise in excess of the guidelines, when Toronto school teachers are not — despite the fact that primary school teachers there are being paid more than secondary school teachers.

Why is the A.I.R.B., under Jean-Luc Pepin, so tough on wages, and yet in spite of attempts to control prices, the cost of living keeps going up?

We are rapidly getting ourselves into a system of total government involvement in the society — perhaps by design, perhaps by accident. Certainly this increased government control in every aspect of life was not something Canadians said they wanted at the polls.

During the next few weeks, we will have the chance to examine what the Trudeau government intends to do during this coming session of Parliament. I would suggest we watch carefully what proposals are made in the Speech from the Throne.

SGT. STRIPES...FOREVERBILL SMILEY*That was some year!

By BILL SMILEY

THIS is the time of year when instant experts and fallible fools such as newspaper columnists make idiots of themselves by predicting what the next 12 months will bring.

Looking into a New Year is rather like looking into an old rubber boot. It stinks a little, you can't see anything in there, and the thing probably leaks, heel and toe.

I prefer to do a little looking back and a little looking forward, make some hasty generalizations based on the arthritis in my big toe, and hope everybody will have forgotten what I said by the following week. Which they will.

Let's look back — 1975 was the year of The Big Strike. Everybody who was somebody, and a great many who were nobodies, went on strike at least once.

As a direct result, Canada's credibility as a producing nation, a reliable nation, a prudent, sensible nation, took a nosedive.

Foreign investors were heard saying things like: "Migawd, I'd be safer betting on the exact hour and minute of Napoleon's return from Eternal Exile than I would be putting money into that Crazy Canada."

It was also the year of the Grand Gimme and the Chronic Catch-up as everyone and his elderly aunt, clad in sack-cloth and ashes, moaned piteously, beat bosoms, and scabbed tooth and nail to get a bigger chunk of the national loot than everybody else and her elderly uncle.

It was the year in which the Montreal Olympics could no more have a deficit, according to that reincarnation of Moses misleading his people to the unpromising land, Mayor Drapeau, than a man could have a baby.

It was the year in which the Thanksgiving roast turkey was transformed by our Grand Guru into boiled seal-gull.

It was the year of election upsets, political promises, union threats, dire warnings, insane headlines and callow assumptions. In short, it was a year much like the one before it and the one that is coming after it — an amusing and horrifying record of man's moral and mental weaknesses.

But that was the bad news. Now for the good news. It was also a great year, in some respects for you and me.

Personally, I had a fine year. Just listen to this list, and yours is probably better, if you think back.

I discovered a bracing, healthful new sport, cross-country skiing, and within a month was known as The Terror of the Trails (by two old ladies of 86 and 89).

I developed into Canada's most nauseatingly proud grandfather, as Pokey and I cemented an already firm friendship, culminating in an orgy of mutual admiration this past Christmas when the little devil got at least eleven-seven presents. I love him because he is bright, lively, handsome, and a real hell-on-wheels kid. He loves me because he can get me to do anything, literally, that he wants me to do. In this league I am known as The Spoiler.

While we're all in the family, other things made it a good year. My wife and I stayed married and together, a rather unusual combination after a quarter-century. We even like each other, which is almost incredible, after what each of us has put up with.

My daughter, apparently celebrating Women's Lib year, or something, got herself pregnant again and I am expecting my first granddaughter (daughter underlined) any day now. Notice I said I am expecting. It used to be the mother who was expecting, but things are all cock-eyed these days.

Still in the family, I met a whole gaggle of cousins from the West I'd never seen before, cousins from the East I hadn't seen for 25 years, and sisters and brothers I hadn't seen for a couple. A great reunion, enough family stuff to do a fellow for the next decade.

There were many other high moments for me during 1975. Did some Auld Lang Syne-ing with newspaper friends. Caught a big pike and rode in a tiny Aeronca over the brooding, empty wilderness of northern Saskatchewan. Caught a big cold and rode in a taxi through the brooding, teeming wilderness of Toronto.

Beat my wife two-out-of-five in golf. Ignored the postal strike by writing 52 columns, even though some will never see print. Teetered through another three terms of teaching. Discovered that in another few years I would be eligible for a category-F pension. F stands for Five cans of pork and beans a week, which such a pension will provide.

All in all, a jolly good year, one for which I wouldn't trade anything, except a chance to do it over again.

Now for a brief look into the dim distances of 1976.

Last year we were bored silly by Women's International Year. I predict that this year we will be bored right out of our skulls by two mountains of ennui — the American Bicentennial and the Canadian Olympic Games.

Not much else can be glimpsed there, in the murk and muddle. Unions will go on threatening, politicians will go on promising, the rich will get richer and the poor will get babies.

But, gloriously, people will go on being people: despicable and noble; anguished and triumphant; hating and loving; being born and dying. It's a great life, and the only one we have.

By KENNETH McDONALD

Ottawa's spending cuts were a step in the right direction. But Ottawa is the prisoner of its folly. The inflationary effect of deficit spending on open-ended giveaway programs is built in so deeply that to make drastic cuts too soon would be disastrous.

The Canadian free lunch counter, which took 12 years to erect, has to be dismantled gradually. But Canadians must keep up the pressure to see that it is done.

Canceling Opportunities for Youth, Local Initiatives Programs and the Company of Young Canadians was symbolic. Make-work programs have no place in a market economy struggling to regain its natural vitality.

A possible solution is to reduce unemployment insurance benefits and minimum wage rates for teenagers as an incentive both to them and to potential employers.

Ottawa's spendthrift policies have been copied by provinces and municipalities. Despite the cuts, Ottawa's spending will rise 15 per cent in 1976. Only one province — Nova Scotia with 10 per cent — forecasts less than that. The average spending increase for the other nine is 21.5 per cent, against an average revenue increase of 17 per cent. More deficits!

Now the provinces are trying to shift taxes to municipalities, where they fall on the shoulders of property owners, many of whom are among the hardest hit by inflation.

Spending will not be controlled without first freezing, then reducing the civil service. Their salaries, pensions and palatial offices are only part of the cost. The real cost is in their power to waste public funds within the authority of outdated spending programs and to dream up new ones.

In an interview on national television Prime Minister Trudeau, explaining his anti-inflation program, warned Canadians about the need to change their values, habits and institutions. Agreed!

What needs to be challenged, however, is the PM's inference that our economic difficulties are caused by the failure of the free market system. It is the position of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business that our economic problems have been created by the massive intervention of the state in the workings of the free market.

Best strategy for rebuilding Lake Ontario fish population may be decided on islands

The best strategy for rebuilding Lake Ontario's fish populations may be decided - not in a boardroom - but on the rocky shoals of two small islands halfway between Canada and the United States.

Natural Resources fish biologists with divers and staff from the Canadian Centre for Inland Waters have just completed an experimental underwater hand-planting of 90,000 fertilized lake trout eggs in specially marked plots on the shoals of Main Duck and Yorkshire Islands.

An old rendezvous of Prohibition rum-runners, and later the private retreat of U.S. statesmen John Foster Dulles, the islands are part of a chain stretching from Prince Edward County to the New York State shore near Sackets Harbor.

The experiment is a test to find out if the ancient spawning shoals - once the nursery for millions of lake trout before over-fishing, the sea lamprey and pollution took their toll - can still support natural fish reproduction.

"Hatchery stocking is the hard way, the expensive way to bring back the fish," said experiment director Jack Christie, head of the Ministry's Glenora Fisheries Research Station near Picton. "If the shoals are clean enough, if there's not too much egg predation, if we can get the fish to do it themselves, it will be a dream come true."

He said it was the latest stage in the Ministry's program to have naturally producing fish populations in the lake, instead of controlled hatchery-produced stocks. "The first step was a lamprey control program on all streams leading into the Great Lakes, and the second is the development of hatchery facilities to produce suitable parent fish," said Mr. Christie.

During the experimental planting last Wednesday and Thursday, great pains were taken to duplicate what might happen if a school of lake trout were spawning on the shoals. The eggs were fertilized within minutes of planting and were slowly scattered by divers over the rocks in each plot.

Because trout eggs were available only once every several days, and then had a short life expectancy, the operation had to be well-timed. After juggling with overcast weather and other delays everything finally came together Wednesday morning.

At a hatchery near Earlton, 560 miles northwest of the islands, staff began stripping eggs and male trout milt, or sperm, at 9 a.m. Ninety minutes later the eggs and milt in separate, sterilized bottles packed in ice were heading south in a small commercial plane. By 2 p.m. the plane had jolted down on the Main Duck's small, grass airstrip. Soon after, the cargo was aboard the Ministry tug "Cottus" heading for the nearby shoals in wake of the "Shark", the federal research boat carrying the divers and more than $100,000 worth of underwater and electronic gear.

After exploring the shoals with an underwater videotape camera being monitored above, the divers marked off a 100-foot square on the bottom and began randomly placing 50 metal hoops, the plots in which the eggs would be scattered.

The seeding began just before 6 p.m. and ended 90 minutes later. By then biologists were working on deck by Coleman lantern and divers underwater by hand torch. Egg bottles were opened one at a time, milt and water added and stirred gently with a feather to permit fertilization without egg breakage, then sealed and handed to a waiting diver. Dropping down an average of 30 feet, the divers cleaned away some silt from the rocks, just as spawning trout would do, and gently poured the eggs in the numbered plots.

The last two hoops were placed and planted Thursday morning and the operation recorded on videotape for analysis later.

Mr. Christie said the eggs would fall into niches, expand and lodge there, eyed eggs would develop, then sac fry and about March, with all their yolk gone, the small fish would begin to sally forth. He said every stage of that process will be sampled to determine the survival rates.

Will it succeed? The Glenora director said he was "heartened" to find the shoals were not as bad as they could be, and were relatively free of "organic goo".

For nostalgic reasons, one Ministry team member may have even higher hopes the experiment will succeed: Cecil Lobb, skipper of another Glenora research vessel, and a commercial fisherman on the lake for 43 years, remembered clearly when he fished the main Duck shoals from 1928-31.

Almost everyone can tell you what a newspaper is. In Canada it is either a daily or weekly. Nearly 80 per cent of all Canadians read a newspaper every week. They contain news about you and your town. But there are newspapers and in many places there are "shoppers" or "throwaways." Some contain some news, they serve a purpose, but their primary purpose is advertising. And, they do not legally qualify under the definition of a newspaper.

But what is the legal definition of a newspaper?

The most common definition under postal regulations: "The primary purpose of such publication is to inform the public, and it must have a paid following of readers."

Your local newspaper's prime function is to present the news . . . honestly and fully. That's all. They offer maximum local identification with your community. And their paid circulations are positive proof of their merit, their influence and their being wanted in your community.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmvale, Ont. N3B 2C7

It takes time to get farmers to speak out.

Back in October, a column was written about breeding co-operatives and the cost to farmers in having technicians from co-ops inseminating cattle.

In that column, a dairyman was quoted as saying that any good husbandman could learn to inseminate cows and the breeding co-ops didn't need a staff scurrying all over the country.

Let it be said again: I did not start the controversy and have no axe to grind with either side in the argument.

I predicted that the co-ops would respond quickly and with dignity. They did. I was given a tour of the Western Ontario Breeders Inc. (WOBI) facilities and told how much training the technicians need and get.

I also predicted that few, if any, farmers would do or say anything to substantiate the claim that they could do their own technical work.

When the mail strike ended, half a dozen letters appeared. In addition, a couple of telephone calls were received and the response was in favor of the original argument that many technicians are not needed.

In mid-December, this corner quoted a farmer who had called to say that the 24-hour service promised by breeding co-ops is a lot of malarkey. To quote him: "If you can get a technician into your place after 12:30 noon, I'll eat your hat."

To quote one letter in part: "In December, 1974, we were paying a service fee of $5.50. On January 1, 1975, it went to $7. In September it was raised again to $8 and now, on January 1, 1976, it went to $10, an increase of 81 per cent over the period of time mentioned...all very necessary, they say, because of a sudden shift in income and expenses.

"It is quite evident there has been a shift; in fact, WOBI has acquired a precarious loan with a bank overdraft of $57,000, bank loan of $695,000. Along with other items, they have total liabilities of $928,000. They don't even present a budget to the membership for consideration. Just spend it, add it up and expect membership to pay the freight.

"They stick the knife into you and, as they give it a twist, they smile and tell you what a great bargain you are enjoying.

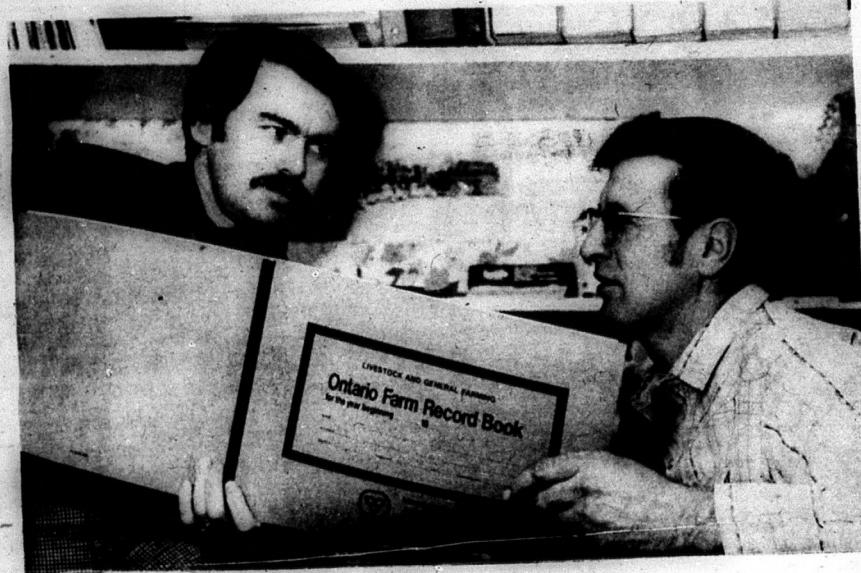

"True, WOBI has never been confronted with a year like this before. In conversation with the president in November, he admitted they waited too long before making any moves to change the direction they were headed. I have long suspected — and after the meeting — feel WOBI members have been helping pay for blue suits for too many fat cats."

So says one of the more outspoken farmers using the services provided by WOBI. I have yet to hear from anyone dealing with the other breeding co-ops such as United Breeders or Eastern Ontario Breeders Inc. I do know that United Breeders has been having problems of a different sort such as thousands of dollars worth of semen being stolen. Again, the membership ends up paying for this mishap, too.

To conclude, one of the letters said there are many other matters that might be touched on but, like most farmers as you have said in your column, letter writing is not our usual thing.

Intriguing, isn't it? And it all began over a chance remark made by a dairy farmer.

I'll be happy to air both sides of the controversy if readers are interested. As mentioned before, this corner will try to be impartial in presenting both sides of the argument. But I would like to get an idea from other readers as to whether they think it necessary to carry it farther.

How you doing down on the farm?

Sound farm management means knowing how you're doing, as well as what to do. That's where farm record-keeping comes in.

Good annual records provide Ontario farmers with a sound basis for next year's planning and decision-making and help chart the cash flow of an operation.

The Ontario Farm Record Book, completely revised for 1976, can provide a farmer with a complete statement of his operation — overhead, expenses, inventories, cash income and other facets so important to a successful operation. This record of operation can also prove beneficial at income tax time.

Further assistance to the farmer can be provided by the experienced extension personnel available in every county and district office of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. They will provide up-to-date information on taxation, credit, depreciation and other much needed data.

Start off right in the new year. Keep your records straight.

Landlords could face fines of up to $2,000

Landlords who collect more than an eight per cent increase in rent will face fines of up to $2,000 under the Ontario rent review program, Ontario Deputy Housing Minister Donald Crosbie warned.

He also revealed that there would be a "hot-line" to handle questions and region rent review offices will be opened next month.

The ministry is advising tenants covered by the new rent review legislation to withhold the portion of any rent increase above eight per cent. This withholding applies only to rents from January 1, 1976, onwards.

"Until the landlord receives approval from a rent review officer he may collect an increase of up to eight per cent and no more, and that is all that any tenant has to pay," Crosbie said.

However, he warned that if a new lease is signed above the eight per cent and is eventually approved, the tenant would be responsible for retroactive payments.

The eight per cent is the maximum increase over the rent charged during the last full month prior to 1976. The act covers tenants in apartments, houses, duplexes, rooming houses and mobile home units.

Exempt from the act are certain non-profit housing, commercial premises and buildings that were first occupied as residential premises on or after January 1, 1976.

There are an estimated one-million-plus residential premises on or after January 1, 1976.

There are an estimated one-million-plus residential units in the province covered by the legislation—440,000 of them in Toronto.

Ministry spokesman Grant Maxwell said there will be 78 rent review officers—some of them part-time-ready to put Toronto and regional review offices into operation in early February.

Offices will be in Toronto, Windsor, London, Owen Sound, Kitchener, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Mississauga, Richmond Hill, Barrie, Oshawa, Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston, Cornwall, Ottawa, Pembroke, North Bay, Sudbury, Timmins, Sault Ste. Marie, Thunder Bay and Kenora.

Maxwell said that before March 31 over 400 people would be employed by the program and the staff would swell to 600 in future.

He said the ministry has been swamped by "thousands" of calls and letters and that there's "bound to be a backlog. The rent review officers are going to be busy" with renters seeking redress and landlords asking for increases beyond the guidelines.

Officers' decisions will be binding but can be appealed to the rent review board.

Developer Lawrence Hankman, president of Consolidated Building Corporation said the ministry's advice to tenants to withhold rents "borders on the irresponsible. The legislation is very one-sided.

Shankman said the rent review program is "going to put quite a strain on landlord-tenant relations. God knows there's enough strain, tension and aggravation in the world already without the governments creating more. It's too bad to see so many good landlord-tenant relationships disappear, as they will."

New president presides over first Eldorado UCW meeting

Attending the first meeting of 1976 of the Eldorado U.C.W. were Lois, Alma and Marguerite Blackburn, Edith Boyle, Phyllis Creaser, Violet Johnson, Mary McCann, Alma and Minnie Moorcroft, Dora Palmer, Isabella and Olive Shaw. The new president, Mrs. Gerald Blackburn, began the meeting with the roll call and business. It was decided to have a pot luck supper for a Valentine meeting in February, with the men and children invited. Delegates were chosen to attend the annual meeting in Picton on February 2nd.

The program was conducted by Mrs. Johnson, with Mesdames Boyle, McCann, and Shaw assisting. Mrs. Johnson also had a quick oral Bible contest.

Mrs. C. Blackburn led the worship service with a theme from the sermon on the Mount. Mrs. Creaser read the Scripture and Mrs. Blackburn the meditation. She closed with Hymn 362 and Prayer.

Mrs. C. Shaw and Mrs. L. Blackburn were hostesses for the social hour following and Mr. Creaser joined the group then.

$1,00 damage in accident

A two-car collision two miles north of No. 7 Highway on the 7th Concession of Elzevir Township resulted in nearly $1,000 damages on Sunday, January 4th.

The first vehicle, driven by Neil Morton, 26, of Thomasburg, sustained $800 damages when it collided with the second vehicle travelling in the opposite direction. Driver of the second vehicle was 62-year-old Harry Thompson of R.R. 6, Belleville. The Thompson vehicle received $100 damages. There were no injuries in the mishap, which took place at 4:50 p.m.

Const. Scott Robinson has charged Mr. Thompson with "failing to share".

Two-vehicle crash causes $500 damage

A two-vehicle collision nine miles south of Tweed at the Spur Station near Roslin resulted in $500 damages on Sunday morning, January 11th.

A 1976 G.M.C. truck, driven by John Paul Hall, 23, of Belleville, was pulling out of the parking lot at the gas station when it was in collision with a 1974 Monte Carlo entering the lot. Driver of the Monte Carlo was 60-year-old Edward Sadinski of Ottawa. Damage to the truck was estimated at $300 and to the car at $200. Both drivers escaped uninjured.

Const. Scott Robinson of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, says no charges were laid because of the icy road conditions and the poor visibility.

Madoc firm installs lights

MARMORA - Payment of $4,785.39 to Nickles's Electric of Madoc for the installation of the 40 new mercury vapour lights at the Marmora Arena has been authorized by Marmora Village Council.

About $300 of that amount was used for two outside dusk-to-dawn lights at the arena, one at the south end and one at the north, as a means of discouraging vandalism.

The cost of the lights themselves is not available yet, but arena chairman, Gordon Bennett, said they would run about another $4,000 - $5,000.

Councillor Bert Gray commented "The new lights are just great - I don't know how we ever got along without them".

Charged with failing

A Marmora man has been charged with 'failing to remain at the scene' and with 'having no current driver's licence' as a result of an incident at 10:50 a.m. on Sunday, January 4th.

Charged is Marshall Bruce Card, 23, of Marmora, who was apprehended at 1:15 p.m. on Monday.

Card was involved in a minor two-vehicle crash at the junction of Madoc and Victoria Streets in Marmora on Sunday. He was apparently struck by a 1976 Chrysler

As you see it....

Profound effect on local taxes, services

Municipal and educational financing comes from two sources - land tax and provincial grants. As the costs of supporting educational and municipal government increased two changes have occurred. Land tax has raised and the percentage of a municipality's budget has been increasingly financed by the provincial government. In 1976, however, the provincial cutback in the financing of education and municipal services is going to have a profound effect. Two changes must occur. Land tax will increase drastically and services will be sharply curtailed.

I am not proposing that the provincial government should spend beyond its income but I do suggest that we need a revision in our methods of financing educational and municipal services.

The general approach that land taxes should be collected to supply money for people services like education and welfare is wrong. It makes no sense that if you decide to own a home you must contribute more to society through land taxes, than if you live at home with the folks. It makes no sense that a retired couple on a fixed income owning their own home should pay educational and welfare taxes while a single and working eighteen year old with no responsibilities and living at home should make no contribution. It makes no sense that farm taxes go up while farm income goes down. This type of taxation is out of date and unfair.

Land taxes should be basically collected for municipal activities which serve the land, service like road plowing, drainage and sewers. These services are understandably within the municipal jurisdictions that improve properties. It would seem logical to pay for these from land taxes.

Although there is a basic formula to finance boards and municipalities from provincial funds, based on population and the ability to pay an additional complex system of municipal and educational subsidies exists that encourages municipalities and school boards and schools to spend. This system of additional grants exists in the form of money pools for those that apply. The general approach of local officials across the province has been, if we don't get it someone else will - let's get our share. The monies may not be for what they need but it's there for the taking so why not cash in on a project and show the taxpayer how much we can get without raising local taxes. It's a short-run, narrow-minded approach, but it's encouraged by the present Queen's Park system, which we all must pay for in the long run.

I suggest that some money saving and more efficient alternatives to local financing might work as follows:

1. Land taxes must be levied only for land services.
2. Municipalities might be allowed access to income tax on a more equitable form of raising money.
3. The provincial government should give no strings attached money to municipalities and boards to spend as they best see fit. In this way boards and municipalities would be responsible for making their money go as far as they can in the most needed areas of their jurisdiction. This approach might improve finance efficiency at a school by school level as well.
4. Boards of education might be made responsible for raising their own monies instead of simply passing on the levy to the local municipality who then bear the anger of the taxpayer. Because more than half the land tax is for education, boards must be responsible for raising their own revenue. This move would surely make boards more efficient in expenditures. It is worth noting that the school population since 1970 has fallen by 2 percent, yet current expenditures have increased by 60 percent (figures from Darcy McKeough, 1976).

5. The provincial government must still make extra funds available for large capital projects required in a local area.
6. There must be built-in incentives in local spending to budget efficiently. If a local jurisdiction has money left over it should not automatically have funding from the Province reduced as is done now. It must have the option to plan and save for a future project with present funds.

In conclusion I suggest that our system of educational and municipal financing encourages waste and spending. It penalizes property owners. Its inability to function under modern conditions has recently been proven with the financial collapse of New York City, which is financed in a very similar way to our own municipalities.

As the entire country tightens its economic belt, as educational and municipal spending increases are limited to 6-8 percent and land taxes mushroom, what better time to rethink our system of local taxation? We can develop a more efficient and fairer method of raising local monies.

KITS GOING OUTNew liquor laws are now in effect

Sidney Handleman, Ontario's Consumer Minister, has announced that the province's new liquor laws are now in effect. In making the announcement, the Minister said information kits will go out to all licensees of the Liquor Licence Board, containing copies of the new act, the regulations and an explanatory

Why not care for lawn
time too?

Most home gardeners take a great deal of pride in their lawns all summer long. But once winter arrives, they may also be unknowingly abusing them, states an Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food specialist.

Mr. R.A. Fleming, a Ministry horticulturist, states that continued traffic over a frozen lawn can cause compacting which may take all spring the following year to recover. He points out that in extreme cases, where the turf has been constantly used as a pathway, the lawn may actually be killed.

"Homeowners should avoid making regular pathways over lawn areas in the winter. Instead sidewalks and paved paths should be used, even if they do require a few extra steps," he says.

If left on the turf over the winter, a large sheet of ice can severely set back lawn growth in the spring. Skating rinks installed on lawn areas, too, may cause smothering problems, particularly if they are made before the ground has had time to freeze solid.

Homeowners in smaller communities with snowmobiles also need to take care in the use of the machines. Continual packing of the snow can form an ice layer that will smother the lawn. During refueling of such vehicles, all precautions should be taken to prevent spilling of gasoline or oil on the snow, since these petroleum products can also kill turf grasses.

Mr. Handleman noted that the new acts do not change provincial policy on the availability of beverage alcohol, but make substantial improvements in the administration of existing policies. "I think that it is fair to say that these laws do not represent any liberalization of this province's drinking rules," the Minister stated.

The Minister drew attention to the fact that the Liquor Licence Act, 1975, provides for an Appeal Tribunal which can hear appeals from decisions made by the Liquor Licence Board. "It was clear to us," Mr. Handleman said, "that there was a need to rationalize and streamline the system of evaluating prospective licencees and reviewing existing licence holders. The new act provides for increased communications between the LLBO and its licensees, and establishes an appeal route which was previously unavailable to licensees."

Mr. Handleman said that the government had considered with great care the submissions made to it in the process of developing the new legislation.

"At that time," he said, "we took an overview of the entire provincial liquor policy. When we considered the social costs of alcohol...traffic accidents, damage to personal health, and the many other things attending increased alcohol consumption...it was obvious that liberalization of our liquor laws was not in order.

"I think that the new liquor laws represent a framework within which we can improve the administration of our present policies to ensure fairness and openness in the course of the decisions taken to implement these policies," the Minister concluded.

"We Worship Jesus" was sung to the tune of "How Great Thou Art". Prayer followed, by Mrs. Allan Franks. Offering was dedicated by singing, "We Give Thee But Thine Own", and Prayer. Roll Call was answered by a verse from the Bible containing the word, Love.

A card of appreciation was read from the Gordon family for the donation to the Heart Foundation as a memorial to Mrs. G. Gordon, who had passed away recently.

A motion was made to donate money to the Church choir.

The program, an item by each member, was in the form of various Christmas readings. Hymn 53, "Silent Night", was sung and the meeting closed with a Mizpah Benediction.

A half-hour was spent in wrapping Christmas gifts, after which the ladies, accompanied by Mr. Creaser, went to the Queensboro Court Home where they spent a social time and were shown around. Then Mrs. Budinsky and Mrs. J. Gordon served a very festive lunch, which was much appreciated by all. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Budinsky, owners of the Court Home, and Mrs. Gordon, for their hospitality.

He is immediately survived by his wife, the former Frances Hope, and two sons and one daughter, Mike of Mountain Top, Pennsylvania, U.S.A., and Mrs. Jean-Claude [Jill Kathleen] Cote of Clyne and James John of Calgary, Alberta.

BRUNTON - In loving memory of a dear mother, grandmother and great-grandmother Mrs. Elizabeth Brunton who passed away Jan. 19, 1975. Sadly missed by daughters, Violet and Burnis, and son, Clayton, and families.

ST. PIERRE - In loving memory of our dear sister-in-law and aunt Beverlee, who passed away January 13, 1975. Peacefully sleeping, resting at last, The world's weary troubles and trials are past. In silence Bev. suffered in patience she bore. Till God called her home to suffer no more. God Bless you in his Heavenly home And keep you in His loving care. Sadly missed and always remembered by family Jannette, Carmel, Bev., Marjorie, Elmer, Murray, Billy, Carolyn, Phillip, Phoebe, and Dennis.

YOUNG - In loving memory of a dear father, Richard Young, who passed away January 24, 1974. Sadly missed and always remembered by family Jannette, Carmel, Bev., Marjorie, Elmer, Murray, Billy, Carolyn, Phillip, Phoebe and Dennis.

KING - In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Bruce, who passed away Jan. 18, 1974. LILLIAN O'CONNOR

Marmora lady seeks Liberal party nomination

The president of the Marmora and District Liberal Association has announced she will be seeking the Liberal Party nomination to contest the Hastings-Peterborough Riding in the next provincial election.

Lillian O'Connor, who some time ago worked for five years in the office of the Provincial Secretary at Queen's Park, made the announcement today.

"Politics is something I have always followed with great interest," she told this newspaper.

"At the present time there is a definite need for change in the Government of Ontario. Thirty-two years is just too long for one party to be in power."

"Hastings-Peterborough has traditionally been a Tory riding, but I am convinced that this is the time for a Liberal government and a Liberal member from this riding."

"Hopefully, I will be the one to represent the area in the next Government of Ontario."

Mrs. O'Connor is the first declared candidate in the race. Clarke Rollins, the Conservative incumbent who has held the riding for the past 16 years, has announced he will not be seeking re-election and nobody has officially announced intentions of going after the P.C. nomination.

Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate in the last election, is believed interested in running again, and although he hasn't made any official announcement, is thought likely to oppose Mrs. O'Connor for the Liberal nomination.

Don Mullan, president of the Hastings-Peterborough Provincial Liberal Association, says no date has been set for the nomination meeting, and contends no arrangements for same will be made until after the Liberal leadership convention slated for Toronto at the end of this month.

Mrs. O'Connor grew up in Toronto, attending secondary and business schools there. She married Breen O'Connor and moved to Marmora, where they now reside. The couple have 14 children - 8 girls and 6 boys.

Keenly interested in education, Mrs. O'Connor has served as a trustee on the Hastings-Prince Edward R.C. Separate School board for the past seven years, serving as chairman for the years 1973 and 1974.

A member of the Board of Governors for Development and Peace, she is also treasurer and a member of the executive committee for the board. The organization provides development aid to the underdeveloped countries.

She is president of the ladies division of the Marmora Curling Club, secretary of the Marmora and District Industrial Development Association, a member of the Ontario Provincial Executive of the Catholic Women's League and a sales representative for the Barry and Forchuk Real Estate Company of Trenton.

Winter slay ride!

Producing wider range potted plants

To meet consumer demand for something different, many greenhouse growers are producing a wider range of potted plants, says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and food horticulturist, J.K. Hughes.

The latest types of ferns to be made available are Bird's-nest, Maidenhair and the new "Fluffy Ruffle" Boston-type fern. The Bird's-nest Fern produces erect, bright green fronds from the crown, in a nest-like center. Maidenhair ferns need a cool location, high humidity and subdued light to thrive. "Fluffy Ruffle" adds another variety to the list of Boston-type ferns.

The new poinsettias have also been introduced. One, known as "Jingle Bells," has a variegated red bract, and will likely be in limited supply this year. The other poinsettia is yellow - a change from the traditional red or white.

Many new varieties of plants to be grown in hanging baskets are also available, such as the attractive, trailing, green-berried "String of Pearls". Also coming on the market are many types of hoyas, a wider variety of philodendrons and new selections of Rieger begonias.

Watch for these new pot plants at your supermarket or garden supply center, advises the horticulturist.

STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): A chance of going to excesses this week, Aries, particularly where your desires are concerned. Keep in mind duties and obligations, for they need to be fulfilled, too. Your strength now lies in communication. Let this help you solve the puzzle.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Several good aspects this week, Taurus. Work with others will pay extra dividends. There is a service orientation, also; so be ready to lend a hand. Do take time for yourself, too, as ideas are waiting to click.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): A friend may offer more than he can live up to. Don't count those proverbial chickens before they hatch. Your main challenge will be translating your brainstorms into reality. Don't get too carried away; keep those flashes of genius within the realm of possibility.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): An abundance of feelings headlines this week. They range from great optimism to deep pessimism. Maintain your balance by recognizing the areas in need of work, but also remaining aware of the strong points.

LEO (7/23-8/22): Hard work now will enable you to reap fantastic rewards later on. Concentrate on the practical side of life with an eye to your ultimate goals. Fortune smiles on your endeavors.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Fine aspects this week, Virgo. Love is accented—both the love you give and that which you receive. Influence of others is also present. They may supply the impetus, but it's your follow-through that counts.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): Hoping and coping highlighted this week. A delay in the realization of a hope could cause frustration if you let it. Look more closely to see that the time is not yet ripe. There's plenty to do in the meantime, including a matter at home to cope with.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): This could be the week that the immovable meets the unbudgeable. You can both stand there and glare at each other 'till doomsday, or you can try to find a meeting ground. Begin with an exchange of viewpoints and let wisdom lead the way.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21):

You can get it together this week, Sag. Use your talents and resources in a practical way. You have a touch of inspiration to aid you. Turn a deaf ear, to someone who wants to sidetrack your energies.

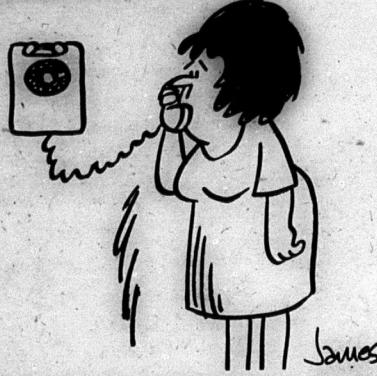

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): Appearances count now in several ways, Cap. First, look your best and act with the assurance that you do. Second, play it cool. Don't appear too anxious, no matter how much you're interested. Make the other party really sell you on the proposition.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): News arrives, some in the form of secrets. A bit of worry this week, perhaps caused by those secrets. Later, your mind can be partially eased by a happy event at home. Week ends with a bright idea.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): Exert caution and will-power in dealing with your resources this week. Don't give anything away indiscriminately. Then, a good word from a friend brings a goal closer. Someone near you may be behaving strangely. Worry not. Week ends busily.

Slaughter Of The Innocents...

Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wrath, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and all in the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently enquired of the wise men.

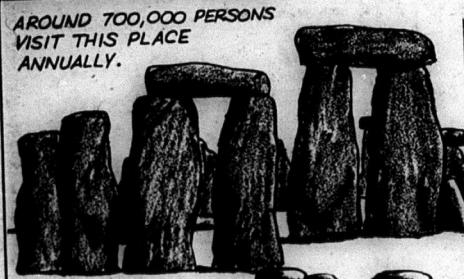

Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying,

In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning. Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

THE LARGEST TOURIST ATTRACTION IN ENGLAND IS THE TOWER OF LONDON. THE 2ND LARGEST?

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 19 and my problem is that I like this guy—Paul—but he doesn't know I like him. He used to come visit my brother because they're friends. Now I know Paul like my best friend. Can you tell me what to do? Please help me."

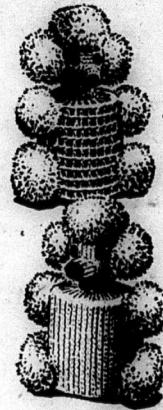

OUR REPLY: Your letter is like a lot of others we receive. The truth is you don't need any help. You already know the answers to all the questions you've got. It's just a matter of execution—playing out the answers you've come up with in your mind. Paul knows you like him. He probably is coming over to see you and not your brother, but he's afraid to tell you, just like you're afraid to tell him. The main thing—especially for someone 19—is you've got to take responsibility for your communication. If you've got something you think you want to say, nobody else but you can say it. Simply walk up to Paul the next time you see him and say, "Paul, I like you." Just say it. Speak the words, out loud. Practice them if you have to. But when the time comes, say them. There is really no problem. If you can write that you like Paul, then you obviously know how to say the words. It's not the words that count, anyway, it's the feeling. Share your feelings openly and honestly and you've got nothing to worry about—except what you make up.

Finalize program '76 Winter Carnival

At last week's meeting of the Madoc Winter Carnival committee, plans were finalized for the program of events for the 1976 Carnival coming up on February 12, 13 and 14.

Thursday evening, February 12th, the crowning of the Winter Carnival Queen will get things underway at the Madoc Public School at 8:00 p.m. All girls interested are invited to participate. The same sponsorship policy applies this year.

Friday's events include Snow Sculpturing all day at C.H.S.S. followed by the Winter Carnival Ball at the Kiwanis Centre that evening and the Youth Dance at Centre Hastings Secondary School at the same time.

Saturday will be another big day as the Flea Market will again be held in the Kiwanis Centre beginning at 10:00 a.m. and running until 4:00 p.m. The Dart and Cribbage Tournament will begin in the Canadian Legion Hall at 1:00 p.m. Registration for the Tug-Of-War and Arm Wrestling (a new event this year) will commence at 1:00 p.m. There will be a Bantam Hockey Tournament in the Arena during the day. The annual Eastern Star hot noon luncheon and the Orange Lodge supper will both be large attractions again this year. Saturday night's usual dance in the Legion Hall will again attract a large crowd. A new attraction this year is a Gospel Sing at C.H.S.S. beginning at eight o'clock that evening, which will feature three quartets.

Sunday, the early morning Pancake Breakfast at the Kiwanis Centre will get the events rolling for the day. The Hunters and Anglers Club will be sponsoring a Snowshoe-a-Thon and at 10:00 registration will be held for a Cross Country Ski at the Kiwanis Centre. The O.S.R.F. Snowmobile Races will begin at the fairgrounds at 12 Noon.

Carnival buttons, with the theme, "Happiness Is Madoc's Winter Carnival", will soon be on sale from members of the committee.

Teen group to present a unique presentation

A young teen group from Kingston will be special guests at the CYC (Christian Youth Crusaders) Honour Council on Friday evening, January 23rd. This group has a unique presentation that is beginning to make them much in demand. Both children and adults will thoroughly enjoy it - that's a promise.

Honour Council is a time when children in the CYC Club receive awards they have been working toward since September. Help us to honour them.

Everyone is welcome for this special occasion on Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Wesleyan and Free Methodist Church on Elgin Street, Madoc.

$ 2,500 damage in truck fire

Madoc Volunteer Firemen were called to extinguish a vehicle on fire at 9:30 Saturday morning, January 17th. The vehicle, a 1974 Dodge stake body truck, was northbound on Highway 62, just south of the railway overpass when the gas tank just behind the cab caught fire. The flames spread rapidly and the cab was almost completely destroyed when the firemen arrived. There was no cargo on the truck. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

Driver of the truck, Robert William Stuart, 40, of 64 Main St., Picton, was uninjured in the incident.

Const. Carl Campbell of the Madoc O.P.P. was the investigating officer. No charges were laid.

Car skids on ice, hits 3 posts

At 8:15 p.m. on Friday, January 16th, Madoc O.P.P. officer, Const. John Ball, was called to a single-vehicle accident one-half mile east of the junction of Hwy. 37, on Hwy. 7.

Wayne Kuhl, 23, of Agincourt, and two passengers in the vehicle he was driving escaped uninjured when the 1974 Mazda skidded on a patch of ice, crossed the road and hit three guide posts valued at $45.00. Damage to the car, which was eastbound at the time, was estimated at $500. No charges were laid in connection with the incident.

Letters must be signed

The Madoc Review has received a reply to a recent letter that appeared in the "As You See It" column regarding the local Provincial Police.

However, the letter was not signed and as it is the policy of this newspaper, the letter cannot be printed until there is a signature on it.

Extensive damage to interior Danford home

Fire, which broke out in the basement of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Danford, 326 Durham Street South, Madoc, on Friday morning, January 16th, caused extensive damage to the interior of the home.

Mrs. Danford, who was alone at the time, discovered fire coming up the stairwell from the basement at about 8:30 that morning.

Madoc Volunteer Firemen were called to the scene and were able to extinguish the blaze by breaking a window to pump the water in by the stairway.

Fire Chief Bob Kirkwood reports that it took two hours for the 15 firemen with two pumpers to gain control of the fire.

Damage to the basement is reported to be extensive and there is also considerable smoke and water damage to the first floor of the house. Origin of the fire was in the basement, but the cause has not yet been determined.

No one was injured in the incident.

Trent fees

PETERBOROUGH - Locking fees on the Trent-Severn Waterway and the Rideau Canal should be retained for at least another season according to Hal Hooke, Chairman, CORTS Advisory Committee.

This was one of four recommendations presented recently to the Honourable Judd Buchanan, Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs, the federal government department responsible for the operation of

Canada's historic and recreational canals

In announcing the recommendations, Mr. Hooke said that during the series of public meetings held last summer by the Canada-Ontario-Rideau-Trent-Severn Advisory Committee, there was some opposition voiced against the policy of a fee as such, and again, a few regular boaters felt a fee should have been instituted long ago.

"The major area of concern", he said, "was directed to the wide variety of fees and the difficulty in obtaining permits."

Madoc holds Marmora to tie

Marmora had the edge in play but couldn't get an edge in goals as the locals battied Madoc to a 4-4 tie in OMHA Midget action last Saturday.

Dave McKenzie, on a pass from Tom Barker, and Walter Webb clicked for first period goals as Marmora jumped into a 1-0 lead.

Dave McKenzie's goal, on a passing play with Tom Barker and Walter Webb, put Marmora into a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Wayne Lajoie teamed up with Paul Armstrong to put Marmora ahead 2-0 in the early second, but Madoc roared right back with two goals to even the count. Glen Brown and Terry Snider on a pass from Larry Bailey accounted for the Madoc markers.

Paul Armstrong, on a shot from the point with Lajoie and Mark Hanley assisting, put Marmora back into the lead before the period ended.

Kelly Welch gave Marmora a 4-2 lead in the early third, but once again Madoc came back strong to square the count. Tom Sutton scored both on a passing play with Rick Brown.

The tie gave Marmora the season's series over Madoc, as they finished with two wins against a loss and a tie.

The locals will take on Madoc in the first round of the provincial playoffs, and it should be a whopper of a series.

Marmora makes its next start Friday night in Coborne.

Attends conference

Andragogy is at the opposite pole of the educational spectrum to Pedagogy, and is defined as "The Art and Science of Helping People Learn", while Pedagogy is "The Art and Science of Teaching Objects"!!

See pantomime on "Aladdin"

Mr. and Mrs. David Handley and their son, Jude, went to see the pantomime, "Aladdin", at the O'Keefe Centre, Toronto, on January 10th. The Pantomime, starring and directed by Lionel Blair, a Canadian currently working out of Britain, was enjoyed by all.

Everyone joined in the boozing and hissing of the villain - the wicked wizard Abanazar, who left poor Aladdin in a cave where the young lad found the magic lamp. After much pyrotechnical activity, the loss of the lamp to Abanazar - Aladdin married the princess and they all lived happily ever after!

Lionel Blair is hoping to bring another pantomime to Canada next Christmas. He plans to direct either "Jack and the Beanstalk" or "Dick Whittington", either of these should be well worth a trip to Ottawa or Toronto.

Steady goaltending

Marmora pee wee B's, backed by the steady goaltending of Larry Hulsman and Michael Mullan, blanked Madoc 1-0 at the Marmora arena Saturday afternoon.

The only goal of the game came early in the first period as Billy Gray scored on a pass from Norman Cassidy.

The fine goaltending of Hulsman and Mullan held Marmora in the game, as Madoc clearly outshot the locals.

Marmora's defensive corps played their best game of the season, but the forwards missed some excellent chances in the Madoc zone.

The win was the second straight for the Marmora B's and they hope to extend it to three when they play a return visit to the Madoc Arena Saturday at 2 p.m.

Pee Wees tie

The Madoc PeeWee A's tied Frankford Friday night in a 2-2 tie.

The first period saw Frankford score twice and Madoc once. Madoc's goal was by Randy Gray, unassisted.

There was no scoring in the second period and the third's only goal was by Paul Mason, assisted by Darryl Love. This game ended the schedule.

The PeeWees play an exhibition game in Tweed tonight at 7 p.m.

On Friday, January 23rd, they have an exhibition home game with Bancroft at 7:00 p.m.

First vote costs new warden $500.

Newly elected Hastings County Warden George Lyons lost $500, in casting his first tie-breaking vote at the inaugural meeting of the 1976 county council.

In voting against a recommended eight per cent wage increase for county councillors, the warden also thumbed down a proposed $500. a year increase for himself. His vote broke a 13-all deadlock.

Reeve Calvin White of Dungannon Township proposed the increases in presenting a report of the personnel committee.

The committee suggested remuneration for county councillors, members of the suburban road commission and members of the land division committee be increased by $3. a day (from the present $40) which is slightly less than an eight per cent increase and that the honorarium paid to the warden be increased by $500. (from its present $8,000) which is slightly over a six per cent increase.

PRACTICE RESTRAINT

Reeve George Wood of Huntingdon Township kicked off lengthy discussion on the proposal, saying if the county was really going to "practice restraint" in its '76 budget, it should "eliminate the pay hike for county councillors. An increase for the warden, he indicated, could be justified.

But Warden Lyons said "if council takes a reduction, I want the proposed warden's increase eliminated too."

Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake Townships seconded a motion by Reeve Wood, calling for the deletion of the proposed pay hikes from the committee's report.

Reeve White said his committee had gone over all recommended pay increases "thoroughly", and contended the whole package of proposed increases was eight per cent or less. He noted councils quite often draw the same pay for three or four years, and then catch up all at once, indicating smaller raises, year by year, would be more appropriate.

"If we are not worth the eight per cent raise," he said, "we should stay home and let employees do it."

Reeve Tom Barton of Madoc Village suggested if the raise went through, those members who didn't want it, could turn it back into a special fund.

Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow Township said the proposal wasn't "a drastic increase, and I wish we could settle everywhere for eight per cent or less."

Bancroft Reeve Russell Hawley said if county councillors received an increase, "why not municipal councillors?" He contended $3. a day was "peanuts."

WELL PAID

Reeve George Wood, referring to some committee meetings, contended for one to two hour meetings, at $40., "we're getting damn well paid."

Bangor, Wicklow and McClure Townships. Reeve Felix Brown noted some members have to drive great distances just to get the meetings, indicating some members are in their car longer than at the actual meeting.

F. Glenn Meyers, Sidney Township deputy-reeve, noted "we're trying to hold budgets down. We shouldn't take an increase."

Frank Graham, Reeve of Wollaston township, agreed. "We didn't give ourselves a raise on our township council, because we're doing our best to hold the line. County council should do likewise."

And the county did - but only because Warden Lyons voted against the pay increases, saying "I spoke in favor of the amendment, so I am going to support it."

County council names '76 committees

Many area reeves were appointed to the 1976 Hastings County Council committees during council's inaugural session.

Several were named committee chairmen. Committees, their chairmen and members, are as follows:

Roads and Bridges Committee - Leonard Walsh, Tyendinaga, chairman; George Wood, Gordon Wilman, Ray Shortt, Cecil Woods and George Lyons.

Area reeves join in verbal assault against higher education bills

Kenneth G. Smith, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Townships, noted he agreed the board should collect its own taxes. But the board, he admitted, is comprised of elected people, the same as we are, and any higher level of government "will tell us to do directly with them."

Reeve Frank Graham of Wollaston Township won backing on a motion calling for a brief on the subject to be presented to the Ontario government when it meets district municipal representatives in Kingston January 23 to hand down ideas on how councils may cut back or hold the line on expenditures.

Members also agreed to have its finance committee meet with the county board of education, and its administration, to see what can be done about holding educational taxes down.

On that date, the general minimum rate will become $2.65 per hour and in the construction industry the minimum will be $2.90 per hour.

No official word on Eaton's closing here

Eaton's catalogues sales offices will be closed within 16 weeks, it was announced last week by the Company. This will include all sales offices across Canada.

But, is Madoc's catalogue sales office included? Mrs. Audrey Pogue, Manager here, reports that she has not received official notice from anyone regarding this, and that she is on a contract with provisions for a 60-day notice, so it looks like this office will remain open for a while yet, anyway.

In the lengthy news announcement, the Company said it had lost $17 million through the operation last year - and has been losing money on catalogue service over the last ten years.

Eaton's 8,900 full and part-time employees in 279 sales centers across the country were told of the news at special staff meetings held simultaneously last Wednesday.

Spokesman for the Toronto head office, Belleville and Kingston offices would not say what is to become of the staff members in this area. The company release indicated most would be without jobs by outlining terms of severance pay and that all employees would have 16 weeks notice before the operations are closed out.

The Company circulated its first catalogue in 1884.

Changes in family living answers W. I. roll call

Mrs. Ed Alexander was hostess for the January meeting of the Queensboro Branch of the Women's Institute, which was held in the W.I. Hall on Wednesday evening, January 14th.

Mrs. Mervil Lees, President, welcomed the members and guests to the meeting and the Ode and Collect followed. The Roll Call, "What change in family living in the past ten years has impressed me most", was answered by 15 members and four visitors.

There had been 13 boxes of treats and other gifts sent to the sick and shut-ins from this community at Christmas time. Thank-you notes were read from these people by the Secretary.

A donation has been given to the Heart Fund in memory of Mr. Wm. Rollins, who passed away this week.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Max Burnside, District President for North Hastings. She spoke on the importance of the Institute in our country and also made a few remarks about the Institute Ode. Mrs. Roy Rollins thanked the speaker and presented her with a gift.

Mrs. William Cassidy, convener for Family and Consumer Affairs, was in charge of the program. Mrs. Arthur Holmes gave a reading, "it takes talcum powder to catch a man, but it takes baking powder to hold him", and also a reading that she had composed entitled, 'Patches'.

Mrs. Harry DeClair read a selection game. Mrs. William Cassidy read a comic reading, "A cigarette takes to a girl", and also asked several riddles.

Mrs. Arthur Holmes conducted a contest, "Sewing Time".

The meeting closed with 'The Queen', and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time enjoyed by all.

Thousands of Christians now under persecution

"Thousands of Christians are now under brutal persecution in Malawi," declared Mr. R. Pulham, a local spokesman for the Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

"Starting August 19, 1975, more than 34,000 Jehovah's Witnesses from Malawi who fled as refugees to Mozambique in 1972 because of severe persecution were forced to return to Malawi and now experience brutal persecution again. All of this is because of their refusal to join a political party."

Mr. Pulham said he had received a report from K.A. Little at the Toronto headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Canada. Little said that when a group of Jehovah's Witnesses arrived at the Malawi border, the minister for the central region, Kumbweza Banda, greeted them: "We welcome you with both hands. You left Malawi of your own accord and now you have returned of your own accord. The Malawi Congress Party is still in power in this country. Go back to your home villages and co-operate with the party officials."

Then, referring to the members of the League of Malawi Youth, he said: "My boys are here to see that you do co-operate with the Party." Soon roads in the north and central regions of Malawi were filled with Jehovah's Witnesses on their way back to their home villages.

In some instances the Witnesses were allowed to enter their villages and take up occupancy of houses they abandoned in 1972. However, in most cases Youth Leaguers soon called to ask if they were prepared to buy political party cards. Referring to Jesus's example of political neutrality, the Witnesses refused.

Immediately beatings, rapings and other atrocities began again and many were driven from their homes.

Upward of 4,800 fled to neighboring Zambia, but reports just received say they were repatriated to Malawi by force.

Enjoy assembly

Members of the Madoc congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses joined with others to enjoy a two-day circuit assembly at their Norval Assembly Hall last weekend.

Altogether 1627 were in attendance to hear the theme As For Us, We Shall Serve Jehovah, developed through lectures and demonstrations.

At the baptism on Sunday morning, 39 new Witnesses were baptized by total immersion.

Area Grade 8's visit Centre Hastings School

Current grade 8 students from Marmora, Madoc, Tweed and some from Stirling will be in attendance at Centre Hastings Secondary School today to overcome any concerns that they may have about the school administration and the physical plant.

After being divided into nine groups, the students will use some of the school facilities; meet school personnel including the principal, Mr. Henderson, vice-principals, guidance counsellors and house chairmen; and become familiar with "where places are" within the school. The day's activities will end at 2:15 p.m. at which time the students will return to their respective schools in time for normal dismissal.

Parents of grade 8 students will be invited to an open night at Centre Hastings Secondary School on Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to give students and their parents the information they need to satisfactorily complete a program of studies for year one at the school.

If Sunday's frigid temperatures weren't enough for you, try travelling at speeds nearing 100 m.p.h.! For the entrants in the ice motorcycle racing at Hope's Mill, near Keene over the weekend, the weather provided a chilly backdrop for some good bone-numbing racing. The afternoon event was sponsored by the Keene Lion's Club.

Desire to create family memorial inspires woman to design quilt

International Women's Year and a strong desire to create a memorial for her family and its farming background last year inspired Goldie Holmes to design and painstakingly sew her Heritage Quilt.

Begun last January, the large appliqued quilt pictures her grandfather's farm in bright bits of figured and plain fabric. It was finished in May, and then Mrs. Holmes, whose grandfather Storring's farm was in the Crookston area, wrote a poem about it.

A poet since she was 18, Mrs. Holmes is currently awaiting delivery of her privately published book of poems which will include the one about her Heritage Quilt. She began writing poems at an early age to help record and remember the events of her life. In 1960 she became a diarist, adding the daily notes to her writings.

Besides creating on paper, Mrs. Holmes creates in fabric, designing quilts like "Goldie's Dolittle Daisy", an intricate appliqued quilt.

Although she has quilted since her marriage - "On the farm, you had to quilt", she points out. "It was cold and nobody could afford blankets". She began producing quilts in earnest about two years ago.

Since that time, she has pieced and quilted 23 quilts, many for her 12 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. These are quilts following traditional patterns and the child's initial determines the pattern. Robbie, for example, got a quilt called Right Hand of Fellowship.

But her first love is designing, and after finishing the Heritage Quilt, Mrs. Holmes designed her first Queensboro Quilt, named after the community where she lives, just north of Madoc.

It features representations of her home and eight homes near her in the hamlet. The homes, which she sketched during the summer, are reproduced in detail, down to exact shades of colours.

Despite that monumental work and the number of quilts she has produced, Mrs. Holmes insists that she hates the quilting, but likes the patching and applique work.

"I haven't any patience and I don't like sewing by hand", she claims.

That hasn't stopped her, however, and to finish a quilt she has often sewn for hours at a time, sometimes with husband, Arthur, now retired, lending a helpful hand to hold the quilt just so for stitching.

While she may not admit to liking the work, Mrs. Holmes is already planning another Queensboro Quilt, which will portray other buildings and homes in the community.

"Now that I've got started," Mrs. Holmes says, "I'd like to keep on."

TODAY'S HEALTH

Having an operation?

Get ready in advance

by David Woods

The surgeon dons his gown and mask, and walks into the hospital operating room several times a week; typically, his patients will be undergoing surgery for the first and only time in their lives.

Is it possible, then, for the patient to prepare for surgery? Not only possible but essential, says one busy Western Ontario surgeon. At least when the operation is an elective as opposed to an emergency one.

The first element of preparation is knowledge. The patient is fully entitled to know what the surgery is for. And there is an obligation on the part of the surgeon to advise the patient about the operative procedure, possible complications, expectations of success and some of the technical details without being asked for them.

There are three basic reasons for surgery: repairing, removing or exploring. In technical terms, any operative procedure that's an ectomy (like appendectomy) means something will be excised or removed; an ostomy involves forming an opening, and an otomy is an incision.

In any event, the objective of surgery is to restore or improve your health. The pre-operative patient in possession of all the facts is likely to go into surgery in a more relaxed frame of mind.

But as well as being mentally primed for the operation, the patient should also be in reasonable physical shape.

It may sound odd to ask, in effect — are you well enough to be a patient? But the same surgeon advises those with weeks or months to wait for elective surgery to try to stop smoking. The reason, he says, is that coughing can complicate the actual procedure because there's more mucus in the tubes; afterwards, coughing may hurt the healing incision which, for a couple of weeks anyway, is held together only by the stitches.

Overweight patients can also make the surgeon's task more difficult, so it's advisable to try to get down to the correct weight before surgery. Obese surgical patients also run a higher risk of complications.

Sometimes, if they are able to respond, pre-operative patients may be asked to do exercise to improve circulation and breathing — and to cough to clear the airways to the lungs. Debilitated persons such as the elderly or the chronically ill will frequently be given additional protein to get their strength up before surgery, and people who are usually picky eaters should ensure that they get vitamin supplements for the same reason.

In all of this, don't be afraid to ask your family doctor, or the physician attending you in hospital, for information. Your family doctor is trained to provide continuing care, and will choose a surgeon who is best for you and the procedure involved. Knowledge and preparation and communication will put you on the operating team — to the advantage of everyone concerned.

Trudeau playing for keeps

OTTAWA — (SF) — Canada is working up to a full scale Donnybrook over that series of interviews which Prime Minister Trudeau gave on the weekend between Christmas and New Year's. Already there have been calls for an election on the issues which he raised, and there is now a developing sense of alliance between business and labour to defeat the Trudeau intentions.

The Prime Minister told us that we had all been bad children, trying to take more out of society than we had put into it, and although it might have been possible to accept the charge had government been included in the castigation, there is apparently very little sympathy in the country for the solution which Trudeau proposes.

He told us that the age of a new society is coming, and the death of the free enterprise system is upon us. We, the people — business and labour — are responsible for the failure of the free enterprise system, according to Trudeau, and consequently we're going to have to do things his way.

If we don't cooperate voluntarily, why, then, he'll legislate us into compliance.

What the PM promises is extremely frightening. His plans mesh with the Trudeau elitist philosophy, and they portend further massive government intervention in all aspects of Canadian society. His theory of government is simple: an intellectual elite should govern with the expertise of a huge technocracy backing it. Government should be responsible to the people from time to time.

That means Canadians get a say on how their lives are run only at election time, and once we put a government in office we should merely accept what the government decides — whether or not that government is performing in accordance with pledges made during one of those periodic election campaigns which are called by the Prime Minister: "Conversations with Canadians."

The evidence of the past 12 months shows that the present government operates very much like a carnival showman. But the hand which moves the shells over the pea has become slowed with the overconfidence of too much previous successful fakery. The audience is not quite so rapt by the trick now, because there is a growing awareness that the showman is playing for keeps.

A majority of Canadians are against the killing of pluralism in our society; against extending total trust to any government — let alone a government which is sadly lacking in national management techniques.

BILL SMILEY

About Curmudgeons

By BILL SMILEY

RECENTLY, I listed some of the things I dislike about our society. When I'd finished, I thought to myself: "Boy, you are a nasty old piece of work. Do you realize you've barely scratched the surface?"

For a week or two, I went around thinking, in 10 or 20 second spurts, every three or four days, that I was a Curmudgeon.

Some of my younger readers will not know what a curmudgeon is. Well, it comes from the root word "mud."

We all know what mud is. It is dirty. It is cool under the toes, unless it is in the form of a mud pack, which is good for the wrinkles. If your name is Mudd, you are either in the doghouse, or you are a loser. I hope that is clear.

To the root word "mud" (unless we want to root around in the mud a bit longer), we attach the prefix "cur."

A cur, as everyone knows, is a cad with teeth, and sometimes a moustache, who plays the villain in old-fashioned melodramas.

In new-fashioned melodrama, he also has teeth and a big belly or a bald head, and he has become the hero.

Still with me? We now have "curmud," signifying a mean guy who is cool under the toes, has wrinkles, or is a loser. Sometimes all three.

Now we come to the suffix, "geon," which is of more obscure vintage.

It is of Hungarian antecedent, and it seems to have meant, originally, something we might call colloquially "a dummy who makes a lot of silly and unnecessary noise without getting anywhere," which is rather a contradiction in terms, come to think of it.

There are many perversions of the original, of course. We find the suffix in such words as "Injun," "engine," and "john."

But the original meaning is in there somewhere. An Injun, for example, is one of the original "In" people, who rides around in ever-diminishing circles, emitting war-whoops, until he is shot off his horse.

Think of your car. The engine makes a lot of silly and unnecessary noise — at least mine does — and gets nowhere. Occasionally, the car gets somewhere, but the engine remains exactly where it started ... in the "john."

As naval tradition has it, this led to the wedding of "dud" and "geon," meaning a john that isn't working, or a senior officer with a red face, or a towering rage, whichever you choose.

That's one of the beauties of the English language. You can take your pick. And you know what you can do with it.

Understandably, Sir Dud flew into a high rage, the only type allowed to senior officers, and uttered a good deal of silly and unnecessary noise, or "geon," when he had to wait his turn for the "john."

As naval tradition has it, this led to the wedding of "dud" and "geon," meaning a john that isn't working, or a senior officer with a red face, or a towering rage, whichever you choose.

That's one of the beauties of the English language. You can take your pick. And you know what you can do with it.

If you have followed me carefully through this brief but enlightening exploration into semantics, I am sure you have come to the conclusion, as I have, that I am not a Curmudgeon at all.

I am not a mean guy. I haven't hit a little kid since mine grew up.

I am not cool under the toes. My feet heat something terrible in this weather.

I am not a loser. How can you know you're a loser when you don't know what it is to be a winner?

I do not go around making silly and unnecessary noises, except when it is absolutely necessary.

And finally, I feel that I am definitely getting somewhere.

QUEBEC IS ONCE again showing its disfavor for the Canadian nation as a whole by the numerous rantings and ravings of its lacklustre politicians who don't want to see our Queen officiate at the opening of the 1976 Summer Olympics.

If they'd save a bit of their hot air for more important things, perhaps their Olympic site would have been ready for the games ahead of time, instead of perhaps not at all. Stories about the way Quebecers are mucking up plans for the Olympic games site are giving Canada as a whole a bad name around the world - "A nation of dummies," as one Canadian athlete put it.

Perhaps Her Majesty would rather not officiate at the opening of a national disgrace; and we wouldn't blame her in the least if she politely backed off. Goodness knows, she has enough reason to.

But our Queen isn't that kind of lady; and through thick and thin, she's with us - even if the folk in La Belle Province do goof the whole thing up.

Elizabeth II, at least, will give the Olympic Games the kind of respectability Quebec's politicians are incapable of.

And it might be the only salvation we'll have.

HASTINGS COUNTY board of education trustees voted themselves a little better than a 16 per cent pay hike last December; jumping their monthly honorariums from $300 to $350.

This month, however, faced with a lot of criticism over the ever increasing cost of what many people feel is inadequate education, board members have rescinded their action and are now going to go along with the same salary they received during the past year.

Trustees made the move as an act of good faith to county taxpayers, who will seek their 1976 education bills up around 20 per cent over 1975 figures.

We agree; it was an act of good faith, and a smart move.

But the saving is only a drop in the bucket compared to the $2.5 million cut trustees are currently working on, just to keep increased costs at the 20 per cent level.

Another drop that could certainly be eliminated is the $500 contribution the board is making to help offset costs associated with having Dr. Morton Shulman attend a one-day seminar in the county at a cost of $1,000 plus expenses.

Surly money of this nature could also be put to better use - we don't need Morty's lectures, but we sure need a lot more cutbacks in educational spending.

IT'S NOT VERY HARD to pick up criticism of Judge J. L. Cledenning and his actions in handing out 10-day jail sentences to those people who were convicted of impaired driving for the first time.

But for everyone critical of the move, there must be at least 10 others applauding it.

And we're in the latter category.

We congratulate the Judge on his actions. His example, which we presume he will continue to follow in similar cases, will save many lives.

"But what about the poor souls having to spend a few days in jail?" you ask?

Tough beans.

Impaired drivers cause many accidents; and many of them are fatal.

Do they think about the poor innocent lives they take by that extra drink? The heck they do!

Perhaps now, however, everybody will think twice before having that extra drink for the road.

THERE WAS A LOT of excitement around the PM's pool at 24 Sussez Drive the other day - or so the story goes.

It seems our beloved leader threw a pool party - a real family affair - and had even arranged to have a life guard on hand.

Everything was going fine, until suddenly Justin found himself in trouble in the deep end.

The lifeguard merely watched; not moving to lend a hand.

Pierre, still in street clothes, jumped in to save his son.

But upon his return to the deck, the PM was fit to be tied with the life guard.

"Why didn't YOU save him?" he demanded.

"I can't swim," answered the life guard.

"Then how did you get this job?" questioned the PM.

"I'm bilingual," came the reply.

Doesn't always agree but Rollins may run again

Hastings-Peterborough MPP Clarke Rollins mightn't agree with everything the government of Premier William Davis is doing, but he could well be the Progressive Conservative party candidate once again come the next provincial election.

Mr. Rollins, addressing the inaugural meeting of the Hastings County council, said it is his sincere interest to "help people", and that he joined a political party to do so.

"I have tried to follow party policies," he said, "but I don't agree with everything."

He announced at the party's provincial riding association annual meeting in Madoc last December he wouldn't be running again, and indicated one of the reasons was the apparent lack of confidence in him at the Hastings county council level.

But after hearing verbal pats on the back from speakers at the council's January meeting, the 16-year veteran of the legislature could well change his mind and seek re-election.

"I'll have to assess the circumstances," Mr. Rollins said. "But I wouldn't want to stand in anybody's way."

Bangor, Wicklow and McClure Townships Reeve Felix Browne praised Mr. Rollins' efforts on behalf of the county, and county municipalities, and ask him to change his mind and run again.

"Stay with us a bit longer," he said. "There's lots of miles left in you yet."

Warden George Lyons agreed. "We in Deseronto wouldn't have what we have if it wasn't for the member we have had."

Something up his sleeve!

What's Clarke Rollins got up his sleeve?

There's something - but he didn't say what - as he addressed Hastings County councillors during their 1976 inaugural meeting.

Mr. Rollins invited all county councillors, and their wives, to attend a picnic at the Rollins home on Friday, June 11.

He said he would try to get representatives from various provincial government departments on hand to answer any questions members might have, "but it won't be a long drawn out occasion. I have other plans for that day."

He didn't say what the other plans were, however. It's apparently going to be a surprise!

Tories should care about north too!

Another strike in Ontario deserves more attention

By DON FREDERICKS

Now that Wm. Davis has decided that the world would have collapsed around him if he hadn't stepped in to end the Toronto's teachers' strike, perhaps the point can be made that there is another strike in Ontario which deserves more attention.

It is not, unfortunately, affecting Metro Toronto to any extent, so in the finest traditions of Toronto-centred government, Queen's Park is not terribly concerned.

It is of course threatening to destroy the economy of several northern Ontario towns, but what the heck, life is like that sometimes.

It has 10,000 Ontario workers walking the picket lines, fighting against a group of corporate giants who have shown little willingness to sit down and bargain seriously.

It involves a fledgling Canadian union which could be destroyed, and again swallowed up by an international union, if the strike doesn't end soon.

And it could permanently damage the competitive positions of one of our most important and historical industries.

Other than that, there's really little reason to get excited.

You see, it's a bunch of pulp and paper workers who are out on strike in places like Smooth Rock Falls and Iroquois Falls, both somewhat north of the Toronto city limits.

It is a strike which began last summer at some of the plants, a strike which, outside the towns gravely affected, has gone almost unreported.

It's as if it's not really happening.

There was of course some speculation that Davis and his gang may discuss ways and means to end this terrible strike. But Davis assured us that no such discussions took place.

Well, why not?

Why didn't cabinet talk about a strike which is a zillion times more serious than any inconveniences caused by the teachers' strike?

All one has to do is travel to different areas of this province to find out how much people outside Toronto believe that government, and everything else, in this jurisdiction is geared to and for the benefit of Toronto.

Sure, strikes in Toronto are important because they're often large, affecting many people, but how in heaven's name can a teachers' strike compare with a six-month strike at a paper mill in a small northern Ontario town where there simply is no other reason for the town's existence except the mill?

It's not a question anymore of who is right and who is wrong in this strike - that always gets muddled in the process - but a question of just how long government can remain insensitive to a disastrous strike.

It is not merely rhetorical to report that the pulp and paper strikes are putting whole towns out of business. If you don't believe that, slip along to Iroquois Falls, Smooth Rock Falls, Espanola, Kapuskasing or any of several other towns and cities and see for yourself.

And while you're at it, consider the fact that in 1966 US firms supplied only six per cent of Canada's paper needs, and for the first half of 1975, the US share had risen to 14 per cent. It's still rising.

Think about it.

Think of the terrible social and economic costs involved as one of our major industries slips from its hitherto competitive positions to an also-ran while government dallies on the sidelines.

Labor Minister Bette Stephenson, to her credit, has been working hard trying to bring the two sides together. But she has tried, and failed. There is no shame in failing, but certainly there is shame in not doing everything government can do in a strike which has gone on since last summer and shows little, if any, sign of ending.

The excuse used by Davis for intervention in the teachers' strike is that it would seriously affect the academic welfare of the 140,000 students.

What about the welfare of the families of the 10,000 striking pulp workers? For them, it's not a question of the inconvenience of losing a year at school, it's the real threat of not having enough food to eat.

Stephenson talks feelingly of letters she is getting from mothers in the north crying for help; mothers who can only afford to feed their kids macaroni day after day. Who knows what a steady diet of macaroni will do to the health of a developing child? Stephenson obviously is concerned, but still government isn't worried enough to move in and put an end to it.

Ask the guy in Kapuskasing who just lost his little corner store because the strikers can't afford to buy his goods anymore. Ask him if the teachers' strike or the pulp and paper strike is the most serious.

Ask people in 11 towns and cities in Ontario which of the two strikes will have the most lasting consequences.

And most important of all, ask Bill Davis how he can sit there so smugly and pretend that all of this is a bad dream which somehow will go away by itself.

Like the man said, if it doesn't mean anything to Toronto it doesn't mean anything.

No wonder people in northern, eastern and southwestern Ontario feel forgotten. They often have been.

Ontario committed to co-operate

Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced that Ontario and Ottawa have signed a formal agreement committing this province to co-operation with the federal Anti-inflation Act.

McKeough, who announced that Ontario and Ottawa have signed a formal agreement committing this province to co-operation with the federal Anti-inflation Act.

McKeough, who announced last October that Ontario would not set up its own anti-inflation board - something both opposition parties have been calling for - said the agreement makes Ontario the first province to come to terms with Ottawa over the anti-inflation program.

Basically, it places about 400,000 public employees in Ontario under the federal wage and price guidelines, including teachers and doctors.

It does not however include price increases for such things as TTC fares and students tuition fees, meaning the province could raise those above the 10 per cent guidelines without seeking federal Anti-inflation Review Board approval.

The agreement covers a three-year period, retroactive to Prime Minister Trudeau's anti-inflation announcement last Thanksgiving weekend, but leaves the option for Ontario to opt out if it wishes after 18 months and set up its own anti-inflation board.

Except for Quebec and Saskatchewan, all provinces are expected to sign similar agreements. Those two provinces will govern wage and price increases with their own provincial board.

The agreement means that Toronto teachers will need anti-inflation board approval for any wage settlement above the guidelines. McKeough and Education Minister Tom Wells have said that all along, so the agreement simply formalizes the procedure.

It calls for Ontario to be represented on a committee of provincial and federal officials who will meet at least three times a year to review the national guidelines on an ongoing basis.

McKeough said he believes the guidelines are working well, adding however it is too early to be specific about that.

I'm not a gambler

is my TD Retirement Savings Plan.

Sure I've taken some risks in my life. But one thing I won't gamble on is my future. The stakes are just too high. That's why I started looking into retirement savings plans, and I found out they're not all alike.

The one that made the difference for me is the Toronto Dominion Retirement Savings Deposit. It has all the benefits of a bank deposit built right in and is not subject to stock market fluctuations. I can put money into it whenever I want, my interest is compounded twice yearly, and as long as it stays in the plan, it's tax free. The TD RSD earns a higher interest rate than a savings account, and, if I move, my RSD moves with me, to any of the TD branches across Canada.

But what's best of all is that I know my money is as secure as the TD Bank itself. And that means my future is secure. So if you're interested in a safe bet, start your TD Retirement Savings Deposit today.

An average student in grade six, Tommy is especially good in art. He enjoys drawing both for school assignments and at home.

Tommy gets on well with classmates and with adults as well. He is co-operative and willing to abide by rules as long as he understands them and feels they are fair. If he is upset about something, his reaction is to withdraw into silence.

Tommy needs a family where there are other boys around his own age. He should not be an only child but adopting parents should have the time and the inclination to give him a good deal of individual attention since he has missed out on that for most of his life.

University issues apology

GUELPH - The University of Guelph has apologized to the Canadian meat-packing industry for the manner in which one of its staff members presented results of bacteria counts in cold cuts during a national television show.

The apology was issued by Dr. J.M. DeMan, chairman of the university's food sciences department, to the Meat Packers Council of Canada, a lobbying organization representing all of the nation's major meat-packing companies.

The apology followed the broadcast of a food sciences department study on The Marketplace, a consumer-oriented Sunday night CBC television series.

That show presented the results of two random surveys of four types of cold cuts made by four Canadian meatpacking companies, and claimed that products from Burns Foods Ltd. contained 12,000 times as many bacteria as those made by J.M. Schneider Ltd.

Besides the formal apology Dr. DeMan said today that he is writing a letter of complaint to the producers of the television show, basically chiding them for the sensational and misleading manner in which the research results were presented. He said the claims and presentation was "not scientific at all".

From professional view teachers' strike disastrous

By Don Fredericks

Now the Toronto teachers' strike is over, it's time to make a few final observations and express some opinions about the events that have occurred since November 12 when 8,400 Toronto high school teachers left their students and classroom.

In the state of almost group paranoid that characterized teachers during this strike, they've seemed unable to tolerate even friendly and constructive criticism.

It should be obvious by now, however, to the most militant teacher unionist that, from a financial viewpoint, the strike was futile. By accepting the same offer that Toronto's elementary school teachers snapped up with enthusiasm, the secondary teachers could have placed themselves in a comfortable financial position for 1976 and 1977 - and they wouldn't have lost all those weeks of pay.

From a professional viewpoint, the strike has been disastrous.

For the past 10 years or more, teachers have, quite rightly, been trying to enhance their professionalism. Teaching is a profession and a proud and noble one performing a most important service.

Two of the major criteria of any true profession are that its members, collectively, control the education and licensing of those entering that profession. Logically, the teaching profession should possess such powers, by act of the Ontario Legislature.

But can you imagine any Ontario Government now daring to propose such a law, after what has happened in Metropolitan Toronto since November 12? The Toronto strike has set back real professionalism for teachers by many years. It has weakened public confidence not only in the teachers but in the whole system of public secondary school education. God knows there was enough ill-founded criticism of education before the strike. This has been inflamed by the strike action. It will take the teachers and schools years to live it down.

Secondary teachers have been enraged by the fact that practically every columnist, editorial writer and radio or TV commentator in the city publicly roasted them over the strike. Some of the comments were cruel, malicious and unjustified but the fact that the public opinion-makers were unanimous in condemning the strike should surely tell the teachers something.

All Toronto columnists, editorial writers and commentators aren't loudmouthed blithering idiots. If the teachers had had a reasonable case and a genuine grievance, surely some of the senior media people would have perceived this and pointed it out.

Most commentators went to the other extreme. In doing so, they've hurt a lot of very decent dedicated teachers and they've probably hurt a lot of kids by eroding respect and affection for their teachers.

For the sake of our children and for the good of our excellent education system, we have to start re-building that respect. Please don't judge your child's teacher by the actions of his union or by what happened when one group confronted Davis, Nixon and Lewis at Queen's Park. As union members, people tend to assume different personalities than they ordinarily exhibit.

Despite what you've heard and read, the vast majority of high school teachers are kindly, concerned and capable adults who really care about kids. Large numbers of them are shocked and hurt by what's happened in the last two months.

In the aftermath of the strike, the greatest fear is that since they were legislated back to work, they will carry resentment into the classroom and will try to continue the conflict in the schools. That could be disastrous for them and for public education.

It could lead to two extreme public demands - that private schools be given public tax support, as some of them are in Britain; and that the OSSTF be stripped of its present closed-shop status. Ontario secondary school teachers are now required by law to belong to the union. If public opinion is sufficiently aroused, this could be ended.

We might, eventually, see more and more parents choosing to send their kids to private schools financed by partial tax support and staffed by qualified but non-union teachers.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Elmsdale Rd., Elmsdale, Ont. N3B 2C7

Catching up on correspondence after the strike of inside mail workers has been quite a chore.

That old adage is true: the closer they are to the top of the ladder, the easier they are to contact.

Some readers may remember a lengthy quotation in a December column from Executive magazine featuring an interview with John H. Graflund, president of John Deere Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Deere and Company of Illinois, the world's largest supplier of farm equipment.

Mr. Graflund said he wanted to "preach" once a month on the world food situation. This corner has been preaching the same sermon for five years, too, and it was refreshing to have a man of Mr. Graflund's stature saying the same things.

In a letter received late in December, Mr. Graflund said he was glad to hear another voice preaching to all-too-often-deaf ears the importance of the world food problem today and in the future.

"I totally agree with your statement that the growls of an empty belly incite a man to desperation. And a desperate man is a dangerous man. Wars have been fought in the past over rather trivial things. Is it possible that World War III will some day be fought for just the privilege of eating? We hope and pray this will not be so," said Mr. Graflund.

A couple of readers — yes, Mr. Editor, there are a couple — have chastized me gently for harping on this world food problem to the point of nausea. They said they were getting sick of being reminded that most of the world is undernourished and some people are even now starving to death.

I have been preaching once a month on the topic and I can understand the feeling that, perhaps some people are getting sick of it, especially during the festive season when most of us ate too much and drank too much.

But I believe it is the most important area of discussion in the world today.

With the news in early December that the Russian grain harvest last year was the most disastrous in a decade, food around the world is becoming politicized. What galls me is that we, in the free world, do not really know if that Russian grain harvest was as much of a disaster as we are led to believe. Russia has never been hesitant about stretching the truth over the years if it was to her advantage. Eugene Whelan and Earl Butz have been trying to get authentic figures on grain production from the USSR for a decade.

How do we in North America know that Russia is in need of grain?

Is the USSR buying grain here and in the U.S. at reasonable prices and then re-selling it to other needy nations in the guise of food aid from Mother Russia?

Again, I don't want to sound like I'm parroting Lubor J. Zink, the columnist in the Toronto Sun, who finds a Communist under every blade of grass and just recently sounded off about errors in his column. He intimated that maybe the reds were influencing proofreaders on the Sun to make his column read ridiculously.

I cannot go that far. I do think that Canada and the U.S. should be might careful about long-term commitments to Russia. The States has just signed a five-year contract to supply Russia with at least 6 million tons of grain annually. The guaranteed sales to the Soviet Union could mean that the poor nations will have to take the brunt of any world crop shortfall in the next five years.

So, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

What can be done? Why, keep farmers on the land and keep them producing even if it means bigger and better deals for farmers. Help them get a reasonable return on their labor and investment. Keep the agricultural sector viable and this nation will come through any recession, depression, inflation or deflation stronger, healthier and happier.

I cannot help but wonder, too, just what multi-national corporations like Deere and Company, besides improving their technology, are doing to alleviate world food problems.

Any comment?

BENEATH his tough exterior, Muhammad Ali recently revealed a heart of gold. The heavyweight boxing champion personally donated $150,000 to keep an old people's centre in New York City from folding due to budget cutbacks.

Seeking military artifacts

To the editor,

The National Museums of Canada seek to strengthen their collection of military artifacts and at this time especially wish to acquire uniforms, weapons, medals, military books, insignia and photographs concerning the military history of North America from 1604 to the present.

Artifacts relating to the allied and enemy forces from the First and Second World Wars are also of interest.

These are for display, future reference and research in the Canadian War Museum [National Museum of Man] in the national capital.

The Canadian War Museum would be pleased to hear from any of your readers who may be able to assist in this requirement.

Wolf bounty program - legal or not???

Wolves are appearing in increasing numbers throughout Hastings County, but the county council doesn't know whether it would be legal to go into a full scale bounty hunting program or not.

Some say it is; others, including administrator Carl Bateman, say it isn't. Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake Townships kicked off discussion on the situation during the January meeting of county council in asking the county to help his township underwrite its wolf bounty program.

The township pays bounty hunters $25 for each wolf head turned in, and it's starting to prove rather expensive for his council to handle; almost $900 in 1975 alone.

Mr. Wells suggested the county council pay half the costs - or more, if it so desired - to northern municipalities offering a bounty program.

Stirling Reeve Ray E. Shortt suggested if the county went for such a scheme, it should apply to southern municipalities as well. He said increasing numbers of wolves are being sighted in Sydney, Thurlow and elsewhere, and contended they were "thick in the Rawdon area." County administrator Carl E. Bateman said he "doesn't disagree with what members were trying to do," but referred to legal advice given the county that stipulates councils "don't have the legal authority to pay wolf bounties."

He contended councils paying same "could be putting themselves personally responsible, in acting against the advice of the county solicitor."

"I don't think Marmora and Lake Township has the legal right to pay bounties, but they can get away with it, as long as there's no complaints."

Reeve Wells said he understands Prince Edward County is going into a bounty program, so they must be operating under some other guideline.

Wollaston Township Reeve Frank Graham agreed "it's being done elsewhere."

Reeve Wells' motion, however, failed to gain enthusiastic support and went down to a crushing defeat. But councillors indicated they would like additional information, as to possible legal ways of paying a bounty, and indicated they would consider the motion again.

Tip differential rate, certain categories

Industry and Tourism Minister Claude Bennett announced today that representatives from his ministry and the Ministry of Labour will shortly meet to discuss a "tip differential" rate for certain employee categories in Ontario's hospitality industry.

Labor Minister Bette Stephenson, MD, has announced that a minimum wage category recognizing tips for some workers will be introduced March 15, 1976.

Mr. Bennett, who welcomed the new minimum wage rates for general and construction workers, announced December 22 by the Minister of Labour, added:

"I have had meetings with the Minister of Labour and the tourist industry and consider the tip differential principle a major stimulus for the well-being of the Ontario hospitality industry - one of our largest export industries."

He said that tourist industry representatives would be consulted by both ministries before the recommendations are made to resource policy field.

IN MEMORIAMS

CHAPPELL - In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas W. Chappell, who passed away January 13th, 1968.

A Father with a heart of gold
Who was more to me than wealth untold
Without farewell he fell asleep
With only memories for us to keep
If he could of spoken before he died
These are the words he would have replied,
"Weep not for me but courage take
And love one another for my sake."
Sadly missed but always remembered by Chappell Family and Grandchildren.

RAY - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Grant who passed away one year ago January 24, 1975.

From hospital bed to Heavenly rest,
God took you home to be His guest,
You suffered so much and pleasures were few,
You never deserved what you went through.

We were not there to see you die,
To hold your hand and say goodbye,
But you stood the test and did it well,
And we'll remember our whole life through.

The last words we had with you.
Always remembered by son Edmund, daughter-in-law Linda and grandchildren, Donna Lynn, Scott and Devin.

RAY - In loving memory of a dear husband and father Grant who passed away one year ago, January 24, 1975. God's golden gate stood open one year ago today,

With farewells left unspoken, you quietly slipped away.
You suffered much in silence, your spirit did not bend.
You faced your pain with courage, until the very end.
You fought so hard to stay with us, but your fighting was in vain,
God took you to His loving home, And freed you from all pain.
If you could have spoken before you died, These are the words you would have replied,
"This life for me is truly past, loved you all to the very last,
Weep not for me, but courage take,
And love one another for my sake."
Lovingly remembered by wife Annie, sons Lashley, Shayne and Logan and daughter Mary Ann.

RAY - In loving memory of my father Edmund Ray who passed away October 4th, 1942 and my brother Leslie who passed away April 17th, 1971 and Grant January 24th, 1975.

Time may heal the broken hearted
Years may make the wound less sore,
But it cannot fill the longing
For the loved ones gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened
Though the smile may hide the tears,
Memories keep the wound still open
Despite the passing of the years.
Lovingly remembered by Annie.

WANNAMAKER - In loving memory of a dear sister Joan Wannamaker, who passed away January 10, 1966.
There's always a lonely heartache,
And often a silent tear.
And always precious memories,
Of the days when you were here.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by sister Thornton.

RODGERS - Ruth E. wife of James Rodgers Jr. and mother of Chris. One year ago Jan. 10, 1975, God soon fit to take you home, Which left us with a lonely heart, And many a silent tear, But always a beautiful memory, Of a loved one so dear.
You are sadly missed by husband James Rodgers Jr. and son Christopher, Daughter-in-law to James and Jean Rodgers Sr., Sister-in-law to Bill and Shirley, Margurite, Brenda, Randy, and Elaine, Gerry and Marjory Cooney, Aunt to Gordie, Rita and Brian.

At last - NDP leader Lewis blows it!

By Don Fredericks

For those who observe politicians on a full-time basis, one of the constant pleasures is to watch Stephen Lewis rise in the Legislature to launch one of his patented, impassioned speeches.

It is with consummate skill that Lewis, whether you agree with him or not, argues his particular position.

And so the emergency teacher back-to-work legislation provided him the opportunity to once again, while the public watched, display those skills of speech-making for which he is so well known.

He was in a tough position, no doubt about it, but his supporters knew, just as his detractors feared, that somehow, calling upon his magnificent rhetorical skill, Lewis would emerge from the impossible victorious.

Alas, it didn't happen. Lewis blew it.

Rather than impress Liberals and Tories with the brilliance of his position he delivered what was likely the weakest speech he has ever made, clutching hopelessly at straws, coming out in the end on all sides of the issue.

For once, the brilliance of his rhetoric drowned in the ambivalence of his position.

It was a compromise forced upon him by his caucus, many of whom are from the doctrinaire school of socialist thought and would never wish to see government ordering workers to do anything.

The theory is, of course, that the workers, simply because they are workers, are right, and management, it is management, is wrong.

But, we have a political situation where the NDP, because of its unexpected good fortune in Toronto, holds down second place in the Legislature.

And we have 140,000 students, and who knows how many parents, directly affected by this strike and hoping, in fact demanding an end to this strike.

You see the problem of course. Should the party stand on principle and oppose the government's back-to-work order, with its compulsory arbitration clause, or should it think of what will happen next time out when people realize it was the NDP who seemingly did not want to end the strike?

The only thing to do in that situation was to try a stab at taking both positions.

And so you had Lewis crying out that, alas, in this case the negotiations had gone as far as they could, but, on the other hand, compulsory arbitration really wasn't good - after all, the teachers don't like it - and maybe we should get everybody back to the bargaining table.

It wasn't even a good try.

What Lewis was trying to do was defend a vote against second reading of the bill, a vote which in practical terms means he's opposed to ending the strike by forceful government intervention, while at the same time offering as an alternative, a magical return to collective bargaining, a process he not only admitted had been fully exhausted but had also failed.

Later, he tried, meekly, to explain that to put the teachers and the board back to the bargaining table now - and, of course, give the teachers an interim salary equivalent to the last board offer (an average of over 24 per cent plus cost of living and lump sum payments) - would somehow result in a settlement.

Why? "It would bring public pressure to bear on them," Lewis said.

Perhaps Lewis can be excused for missing it, since he has been vacationing in Florida, but between shoveling the snow from my driveway and otherwise pursuing my daily life, it strikes me that the teachers' strike has been the subject of considerable public pressure for some time.

He said the NDP caucus recognizes "that the situation is in a sense past the point of return," and, of course, attacked the government for not intervening sooner, at the same time speaking of the beauty of the collective bargaining system, a system which one would assume depends upon two sides bargaining together for a settlement, rather than having government jump in and force a settlement before all else has failed.

Perhaps we should leave the last word to Liberal leader Bob Nixon who, as opposed to Lewis, had one of his better days, said: "This is the time when you've got to stand and say you are voting in favor of the principle of the end of the strike or not. It's up to the NDP to explain their particular position - it's ambivalent. You're trying to have it both ways - You're going to stand in this House and vote against the bill and go out and tell everybody that really, you are in favor of the power of the legislature being used to end the strike.

"I've had things like that to explain before and I know it is very difficult. Lots of luck."

The Voice In The Wilderness

In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea,
And saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

ITS POTENTIAL UNIMAGINED.

ARIES (3/21-4/19): This should prove to be an interesting week, Aries. Look for the unusual in dealings with others. Help given and received may take on new facets. Emotions are uneven at best, especially where a friend is concerned.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): The brass ring awaits, Taurus. It won't drop in your lap, but if you grab for it, it can be yours. Then, a whirling merry-go-round of the objective view versus the subjective view. A sensible mixture of the two keeps you on your steed.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Great vibes open your week with romance leading the way. Then, keep your cool as conditions become steamy around work or a project. Week closes with a strange twist of events. Beware the glad hand.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Matters at home get a lift from an unexpected source. Love encounters a problem that only empathy and a level head can solve. Someone's desire for either too much or not enough may be part of this problem. Week ends with a work-out.

LEO (7/23-8/22): News signals opportunity. Practical effort is your magic wand for accomplishment. Later, emotions run high at home. Take notice of the total picture, not just one aspect. Week comes to a loving finale.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Chance of a well-deserved reward begins your week. Take care not to be a yes-man at this time. You will have a will of your own — use it. A feminine encounter wraps up the week with a flourish.

LIBRA (9/23-10/22): Cupid is quite active around you, but his aim may not be perfect. Be prepared for a possible mix-up. Finances could receive a boost. Consider before spending again this week. Later, an intriguing call brings you something to think about.

SCORPIO (10/23-11/22): Read between the lines, Scorpio. Clear your head and use the logical part of your brain. Your emotional side may not be entirely trustworthy now. Later, aid: it's up to you to whether or not to accept it.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Your inner feelings may be very different from those you show the world. If you allow anger and frustration to mount inside, you'll blow. Week reveals several good valves for releasing the pressure. Take advantage of them.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): A difference between your desires and your obligations may be pointed out to you. The dilemma could come into focus as week begins. Midweek brings the answer if your mind is open. Week closes with decision.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): The sun enters your sign this week, Aquarius. The warmth and vigor of its energizing rays will pick up your whole year. Be careful of sensitive feelings at this time. A run-in with a hot-head could crack your calm exterior. Easy does it.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): You may be dealing with acceptance and rejection, also with holding on and letting go. Development of a completely new consciousness is possible, but it won't be easy; much soul searching is necessary.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 18 and I feel like I am being destroyed inside. Last year I was in a terrible car accident in which two persons were killed. I was driving one of the cars. It was partly my fault and partly his fault but I keep blaming myself all the time. I live in a small town and every time a person looks at me he or she is calling me a murderer from inside. Then at the last of the year I dislocated my foot and ruined my college vacation. Now the people are trying to sue me. My love life is completely dull and one big zero. Everytime I ask a girl for a date she says no. Then when I do get a girl to go out with me I do everything wrong. What should I do?"

OUR REPLY: Stop feeling so sorry for yourself for starters. Act your age. We couldn't send you a care package, so we'll try just a little advice. Be honest with yourself. Don't carry the guilt of your accident around as a crutch for everything that seems to be going wrong in your life. Learn from your mistakes. Don't assume what other people are calling you. Ask them what they're thinking. You might be surprised. And how do you know you're doing everything wrong on your dates? If you know you're doing the wrong thing, that means you know what the right thing is — so do it!

THE GOOD WORD from the Bible

Four things on earth are small, but they are exceedingly wise: The ants are a people not strong, yet they provide their food in the summer; the badgers are a people not mighty, yet they make their homes in the rocks; the locusts have no king, yet they march in rank; the lizard you can take in your hands, yet it is in the kings' palaces.

Also on the agenda is the presentation of the 1975 H.C.M.C. certificates by T. O. Heath, Fieldman, M.I.B., and Diane Jarrell, Hastings County Dairy Princess. The wives of the milk producers are specifically invited to attend.

Lunch will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

60 seniors attend meeting

The Senior Citizen's Club No. 473 of Madoc gathered together for their second meeting of the new year on Wednesday. There was a good attendance of about sixty members. The President, Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, welcomed all the members. There was a moment of silence in memory of Mr. Will Rollins, who passed away at Peterborough. This was followed with the singing of "Abide With Me". A poem, entitled "Parting", and "Take Time", was read by Mrs. O'Rourke. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The minutes were read and approved. The business was dealt with, and correspondence read. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. N. Storring, concerning a donation toward the heating of the basement of the United Church and also a letter of thanks was read, acknowledging a donation for the Mental Hospital.

Mrs. Jennie Broadworth was presented with a "Past President" pin from the club. She thanked the club kindly for the pin and also for cards and phone calls she received while she was ill.

The next meeting will be held the fourth of February. The club will be served lunch by the Girl's Club at that time.

The Senior citizens will have a bake table at the Kiwanis Centre for the Winter Carnival. Mrs. Foster and George Moorcroft had charge of the program, opening with a sing-song with Mrs. W. Wannamaker at the piano. Mrs. Arthur Holmes read a poem composed by herself of a trip to Watertown, and also a poem about snowmobilers. Both were enjoyed by all. Mr. George Moorcroft favoured all by reciting two poems. Melvin Johnson showed slides for Mrs. Foster of a trip to Banff and Calgary, also of the Yukon, where her son-in-law worked. There were pictures taken along the Alaskan Highway, and Dempster Highway, showing Kluane Lake and Tombstone Mountain, a rich purple in colour. The snow arrives there in September. Mrs. Foster explained the pictures so full, all enjoyed them very much.

Mrs. O'Rourke thanked Mrs. Foster and closed by singing the Queen. A lovely lunch followed.

Province of Ontario

THEY'D LIKE TO JOIN QUINTE MPP

HUGH O'NEIL, MPP Quinte, watches Ontario Liberal Leadership convention proceedings with two people who hope to join him in the Ontario Legislature. They are Lillian O'Connor of Marmora and

Dave Hobson of Apsley who have announced intentions of seeking the Liberal Party nomination to contest the Hastings-Peterborough riding in the next

Demoralizing effect on children's services

Provincial blundering is having a demoralizing effect on the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County. And, according to Bruce M. Kerr, director, it is "wasteful of resources both human and financial."

Mr. Kerr, in a statement to county council, notes that the province is assuming 80 per cent of all approved expenditures.

"But welcome as this policy change may be, it will not be effected without sacrifice. He who pays the piper surely calls the tune."

And the tune the province is playing is apparently away off beat, as far as the local situation is concerned.

Example:

An amendment to the Training Schools Act was introduced at the spring session of the Legislature which would effectively bar a parent from charging his child as being unmanageable. Although the date of implementation was delayed, most Family Court Judges acted as though the amendment was in force and few children have been committed to Training School. Many have found their way into the care of Children's Aid Societies.

"Ours was no exception," notes Mr. Kerr. "Twenty-one such children were placed with us in 1975 and an additional 18 were admitted without the benefit of a court experience.

"Naturally it was necessary to develop facilities for the care of these young adults and those we were told would be returned to us from training schools - i. e., those local youngsters currently in Training School who had been committed under Section 8. We now have reason to believe that this amendment will not be proclaimed and that we will not be receiving children from the training schools.

County keeps up to driving costs

The cost of driving a car is increasing, and so people driving their cars on County of Hastings business should be compensated for the higher costs.

This was the feeling of county councillors at any rate, as they approved a personnel committee recommendation calling for higher mileage allowances.

From now on drivers will receive 19 cents a mile for the first 5,000; 14 cents for the next 10,000; and 12 cents a mile for anything over 15,000.

"As a consequence we found ourselves in late Fall with group care facilities for which we had no use, facilities which we have since closed or put to some other use."

"This is the position in which we find ourselves all too frequently. Decisions based on fact and logic are made by knowledgeable civil servants at the mid-management level - and we are asked to co-operate.

"But before they can be implemented they are amended or wiped out entirely by senior authority - and the reasons are never made known to us.

"To say the least," Mr. Kerr said, "such practice is demoralizing and wasteful of resources both human and financial."

But as he said, "He who pays the piper..."

Rawdon couple lose home to fire

A fire described by Rawdon township fire chief Lloyd H. Sedore as "quite an inferno" destroyed the home of an elderly Springbrook couple Saturday evening.

The fire, at the Concession Road 11 home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Buckner, left an estimated $50,000 damage, only partially covered by insurance.

Fire chief Sedore said the blaze was first reported about 7:30 p.m. but by the time firefighters arrived on the scene the fire was out of control.

A garage attached to the home was also destroyed but a late-model automobile inside the structure was saved.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckner, who escaped the blaze with only the clothes they were wearing, planned to stay with neighbors until other arrangements could be made.

The fire is believed to have started in the basement of the one-storey frame house where two 200-gallon oil tanks for home heating were located. The exact cause has yet to be determined, fire chief Sedore said.

2-DUNGANNO TOWNSHIP:

4-MARMORA VILLAGE:

The Planning Board has appointed the hour of 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, February 12th, 1976, in Room 301 of the County Administration Buildings, Pinnacle Street, Belleville, Ontario, to allow representations to be made concerning this disposition of the proposed amendments.

Following this hearing, a Master Plan for Thanet Lake (a seasonal residential subdivision) will be presented for review by the public.

Carl E. Bateman, A.M.C.T.,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Hastings County Planning Board

Firemen using nothing more than muscle-power saved a late-model automobile from being destroyed by fire Saturday evening.

The car was in a garage attached to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Buckner, which was completely gutted by fire over the weekend.

Rawdon township fire chief Lloyd Sedor said the firemen were unable to either start the car or push it to safety, and so resorted to one last method - they carried it out.

The car was the only thing saved from the blaze, which caused an estimated $50,000 damage to the Springbrook home.

The January meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Carmel O'Riordan on Friday afternoon, January 16th, at two o'clock. Despite the stormy weather, roll call, "Look for Little Things that Make Life Wonderful", was answered by 12 members. The program convener, Mrs. Roemer, gave a very fine paper on "The Consumer and Her Protection".

Thanks was extended to the hostess and the program convener by Miss Loreen Connor.

A lovely decorated birthday cake, made by Mrs. Delbert Carman, was served in honour of three valued members, Mrs. Carmel O'Riordan, Mrs. Elizabeth Empey and Mrs. Lillian Empey, all celebrating over eighty birthdays. Mrs. Ed Gates assisted Mrs. Carman with the lunch.

Local dairymen upset by gov't move to reduce subsidies

Eastern Ontario dairymen have become so upset by the Federal government's plans to reduce milk subsidies and increase cheese imports that 40 to 50 of them bussed in on January 21st, to seek support and guidance from the Ontario Federation of Agriculture Board of Director's meeting, held in Toronto at the Ontario Credit Union League Building.

Focus of the debate at the Board of Director's meeting was two resolutions from Prescott and Russell counties, east of Ottawa.

The main reasons for the farmer's complaints are, first, that the Federal government has announced that it plans to increase cheese imports from five to not less than ten per cent of domestic dairy requirements, despite the fact that the Canadian dairy industry can easily supply all of Canada's dairy requirements. Furthermore, this is being done without any explanation of why, which leads the farmers to believe that the reason is to obtain GATT benefits for manufactured goods.

Such a move strikes the dairymen as particularly perverse and unwarranted in view of provincial programs, to encourage farmers to increase production. The Ontario IMPIP program, designed to increase dairy production, persuaded many farmers to increase production or to switch into dairy. But this program is such that the government loans are only interest-free if production is increased. With Federal policies designed to decrease production, where is the dairyman to get the funds to pay back the principal let alone the interest payments he will now be liable for.

While agreeing that there has been an over-supply of dairy production this year, the farmers feel the Federal government is over-reacting. The large production was due to a particularly good forage crop situation and a slackening of demand because of the increase in the price of milk products in the period from April to June of 1975. But there is no reason to suppose that such a good forage crop will occur this year and there is every reason to believe that the consumer will soon adjust to higher prices.

St. John Anglican Church receipts topple $16,000

The eleventh annual vestry meeting of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church was held on Sunday, January 18th. During the morning prayer service the Vestry Clerk, Mrs. Dorothy Empey, read the 1974 minutes while the Rector, Rev. J. H. Thompson, gave his annual report. Following a pot luck dinner, the Vestry Council was called to order at 2:15 p.m. to commence the business of the church with the Rector in the chair. Prayers & a moment's silence began the meeting. Mrs. D. Empey was re-appointed as Vestry Clerk. The Treasurer, Miss Luella Phillips, presented the financial statements, which showed a substantial increase over previous years. Receipts in the general account showed over $16,000 while expenses were $14,000. $850 were given in Mission, Feed the Hungry, and the Bible Society. Over $4,791 were given in support of the building fund, while a $10,000 loan was taken out for the church extension fund. A Butler building has been put up as an extension in the present parish hall. Envelope contributors were now over 70, who gave over $8,960.

Luella Phillips, President of the Women's Auxiliary Branch, gave a detailed description of the year's activities and financial achievements. Over $6,000 were raised during the year by the group. Money was given to the general account, for the caretaking, organists, girls club, Camp Hyanto, to Miss Mary Stimson a missionary in Nigeria, Africa and to the Diocesan Thank Offering. Mrs. Gwen Danford, President of Unit I of the A.C.W., presented her report and once again showed very active year's work. The group now holds meetings twice a week to keep abreast of the many quilts that are required by many contented customers.

Mrs. Joan Reynolds, Superintendent of the Church School, gave an encouraging report on the state of the Sunday School. Enrollment now stands at over 50 children. Teachers are Mrs. Helen Runnalls, Mrs. Elizabeth Falladow, Mrs. E. Bruce, and Miss Lorraine Bateman. With the addition on the parish hall, it is hoped to extend school activities in the new year.

Mr. Robert Hudson presented the Men's Club report. The men hold a monthly meeting in the parish hall over a pot luck supper followed by a variety of subjects to discuss and plan for the welfare of the parish. The group raised $620 which has been used to assist in the work on the new hall and church repairs.

Mr. Robert Aylsworth read the Choir report, which again showed the importance of the faithful members and of its contribution to the worship of the church. A Junior Choir has now been formed, which now fills the sanctuary. Miss Nicola Thompson and Miss Joyce Brownson share the organist duties and assist with the music for the church school.

Rev. J. Thompson presented the statistical returns which showed an all high for church attendance since he has been incumbent of the parish. He had conducted over 79 services while 168 throughout the whole parish. Rev. Thompson reported he had made 675 visits during the year, 62 visits to the Belleville Hospital, besides Kingston and Nursing Homes. Eleven baptisms, one wedding, eight burials and 12 members were confirmed during the year by the Rector.

The following officers for 1976 were elected: Mr. Robert Bonter, People's Warden, assisted by Mr. Robert Hudson;

A soil load test before construction of tower silos is worth the price - even at $500 or more.

Agriculture Canada's Engineering Research Service advises that leaning or toppled silos can be prevented if the strength of the soil is known and the right kind of foundation is built. A soil test could ensure the safety of a $20,000-plus silo.

ACW elects officers Lou Phillips president

The ladies of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church A.C.W. held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Gwen Danford. There was a good representation of ladies present, and during the meeting, the election of officers for 1976 took place.

The meeting opened with Prayers and a special prayer for the sick and shut-ins. Mrs. Kay Thompson led the group in Prayer, and afterwards read from a Book of Meditation, the theme of which was, "Prepare The Way". It was elaborated upon by Mrs. Thompson, who pointed out that unless as a group we are preparing the way for God's people by our witness and work, we are really just wasting our time.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, also the Treasurer's report was given. The year of 1975 had been a very busy and rewarding one. As a group, the ladies helped support missionaries in different countries. Old business was dealt with and new business was discussed, mainly catering to the hockey teams for the winter carnival.

The new slate of officers for 1976 are: President, Lou Phillips; 1st Vice-President, Annette Taylor; 2nd Vice-President, Joan Reynolds; Treasurer, Velma Carman; Secretary, Mary Barton; Social Sec., Alice Mitts; Devotions, Kay Thompson; Catering Committee, Velma Carman, Betty Ross, Katie Thompson; Paper Reporter, Gladys Nayler.

Rev. Thompson later joined the meeting. He spoke for a few minutes, mainly to thank the ladies for their loyal support in the past year, and to encourage the group in the coming year to work for the Kingdom of God in their own lives, in their homes, and as Sisters in Christ, one to another.

The meeting was closed with Prayer, and a lovely lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Danford.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Shirley Rose, February 3rd, at 8:00 p.m.

Bill Lahey opened the scoring early in the first period on a pass from Steve Johnston. Less than two minutes after the Lahey goal, Terry Snider scored on a pass from Johnson to make the score 2-0 in Madoc's favor.

Marmora got their first goal of the night as Steve Lawrence scored his first of two on a pass from Chris Doyle.

Madoc scored again before the end of the period as Bob Willemsen counted on a pass from Glenn Brown and Peter White. The score at the end of one was 3-1 for Madoc.

Before the second period was a minute old, Peter White scored on a pass from Bob Willemsen. But Marmora hadn't given up yet as at the 7:28 mark Graydon Maloney scored on passes from Barry Bell and Craig Killian. Then with 15 seconds left in the period Dan Bedore scored on passes from Maloney and Doyle.

with Marmora downing Marmora 3-1. This is a best of five series.

In the first period, Madoc's goal was scored by Darryl Love from Billy Bateman. Both teams scored once in the second period. Madoc's marksman was Billy Bateman from Darryl Love and Darryl Wood. In the third period, Todd Kirkwood scored from Randy Gray.

The second game of these play-offs will be held in Marmora on Monday at 7:00 p.m. and back in Madoc on Friday at 7:00 p.m. flying as Randy Trumble scored on passes from Lawrence and Tim Fox. But Madoc went one up as Bob Willemsen scored on a solo effort to put Madoc ahead 5-4.

Chris Doyle tied the score at five goals apiece on passes from Lawrence and Bell. Then, with 31 seconds left in the game, Steve Lawrence scored what proved to be the winning goal on a pass from Doyle. This was Marmora's second straight win over Madoc this year, having already defeated them 10-5.

The Juveniles host Madoc Monday night and go to Hastings to play Warkworth on Friday night.

The Juveniles go to Colborne Saturday for a tournament and play Norwood in their first game at 10 a.m.

Fight to 4-4 tie

Kegling Korner

The girls are starting to improve each week at the Madoc bowl and strikes and spares are beginning to show up on the score sheets.

Elizabeth Heyworth showed the way with a nice 408 score for three games, followed by Patti Dunford 403, Heather Clark 389, Wanda Carroll 380, Julie Burris 331 and Wendy Morgan with 310. Patti led the single game scores with 163 with Heather following at 157, Elizabeth 153 and Wanda 149.

There were a few absentees last week and they are asked to try and be on hand or their places could be filled with new bowlers as team competition will be started within a week or two. A couple of scorers are needed, so if any of the girls' parents could help in this respect for a few weeks until the girls get the hang of scoring it would be appreciated.

Yarker came out flying in the third period, and Harvey Sharpe scored twice before the two-minute mark. Murray Gray got one goal back for Harlowe with Brian Rollins and Eldon Gray assisting. Bill Patterson scored two minutes later, being set up by Glenn "Hammer" Graham and Kevin Patterson. Murray Gray rounded out the scoring with his second goal of the game, with Tom Barbour and Eldon Gray drawing assists. This was a strong team effort, with the players going all out for the win. Rodney Rollins played a strong game in goal to chalk up another win. The final score was Harlowe 7, Yarker 2.

"Genuine desire"

"Very constructive" and "interesting and informative" were the comments made by Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora village and Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake townships on their reaction to Friday's meeting in Kingston between provincial officials and elected and appointed municipal heads in Eastern Ontario.

The ministers showed a genuine desire for co-operation from the municipalities to the government's policy of fiscal restraint," reported Mr. Reynolds. "There was a lot of feedback on the part of municipalities and the consensus seemed to be that the municipalities are prepared to co-operate with the province by paring all but necessary items from the budgets," both Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Wells agreed.

BONECHO PROVINCIAL PARK

Well-groomed trails make Bon Echo worth the drive

BON ECHO - About one hour's drive from this area is Bon Echo Provincial Park and its more than 70 miles of accompanying snowmobile trails.

The 15,500 acre park is located on both sides of Highway 41, 19 miles north of the village of Kaladar on Highway 7.

Winter camping has yet to be fully developed in the park, but snowmobilers are finding the well-groomed trails more than enough to warrant the drive.

The three circular trails all pass at least one of the more than a dozen lakes in the park and its surrounding countryside.

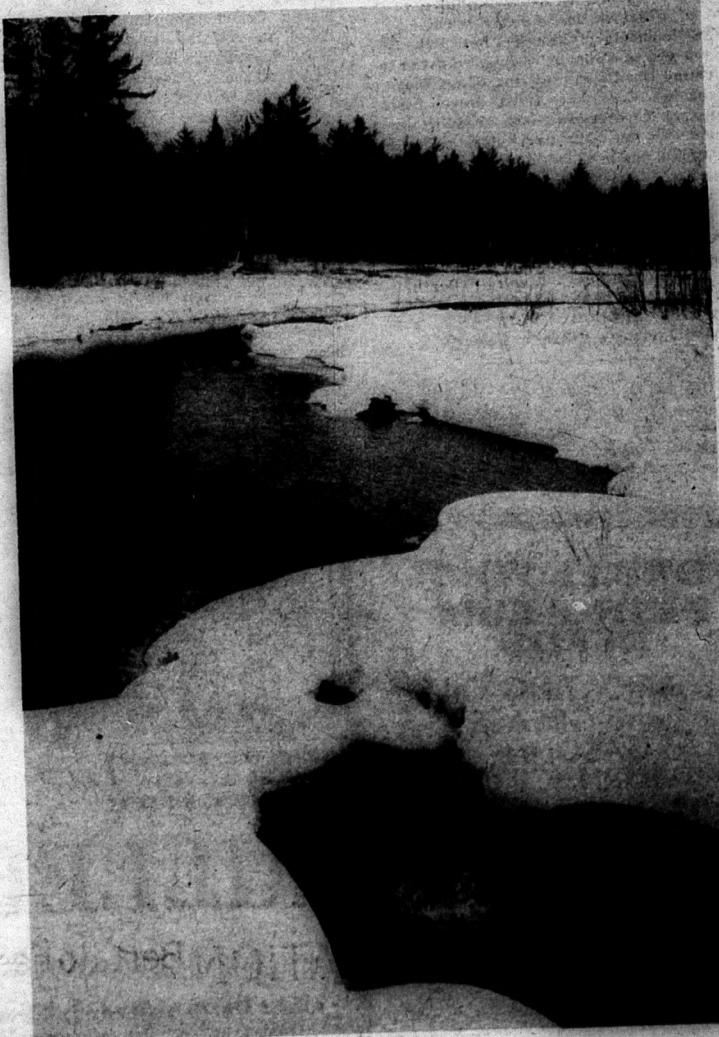

The Essens and Abes Lakes trail, about 14 miles long, stays mainly within the park's boundaries. A second trail, 27 miles in length, also remains within the park except for one section which curves around Rainy Lake. The third trail, at 30 miles, is the longest and is mostly outside the boundaries of the park.

Visitors to the park arrive off Highway 41 and enter the parking and access area. All snowmobilers are asked to register by name, date and home town before entering any of the trails. All three routes begin and end at this access area.

Garbage bags are given out along with trail maps as hints to keep the park as clean as possible.

At present the grooming of the trails is in the hands of four men, with two others responsible for snowmobile maintenance.

Ed Buck is the park superintendent; Brian Peck is the assistant superintendent; Ethel Grant is a clerk; Bill Tibble is the foreman; and Norm O'Brien and Glen Gregg handle the maintenance of the snow machines.

Announce Project

Stirling - The long awaited announcement of the construction of a low rental senior citizens housing project by the members of the Loyal Orange Association in Eastern Ontario was made this week by Bernard Hollinger, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Ontario East Triangle Court. A tender has been accepted and it is anticipated construction will begin in April, with the building ready for occupancy some time in July.

In making this announcement, the chairman noted that this brings to fruition plans which have been made over the past five years by the committee, composed of members of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East; Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario; Provincial Grand Lodge of the Ladies Benevolent Association Ontario East; the Loyal Orange Young Briton Association, plus other delegates appointed at large, who are members of the association of Ontario East; the Loyal Orange Young Briton Association of Ontario East; plus other delegates appointed at large, who are members of the association.

The first phase of the building, to house 21 units, will be built on land acquired from the Bata Shoe Company, and located adjacent to the Village of Frankford. It is expected that 100 units will eventually be built on the site.

There is only one government department approval still required before construction can be announced to begin. Adequate notice of the sod turning will be given.

ACCEPT APPLICATIONS

The Triangle Court is now in a position to accept applications for residency, available likely in July. Any resident of Eastern Ontario is eligible, but it should be noted that these units are designed for use by people with moderate means or income. The project was planned with this in mind, so that there would be a facility for these people who cannot afford the accommodation in some other types of housing, and yet are not totally dependent on outside assistance.

Any person who is interested in applying for a unit, which will rent for about $155.00 per month, is asked to contact Bernard Hollinger, Box 94, Foxboro, or Telephone 968-6155. At present all that is required is the applicant's name, address and telephone number. In due course an official application will be forwarded for completion and subsequent review by the admission committee.

The units will be furnished with fridge, stove, and other major requirements, and the rent will cover all utilities except telephone.

It should also be noted that units can be obtained for people with minimum incomes, through assistance from the Ontario Housing Corporation.

The project is being financed through funds of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, which has approved the contract and the procedure of obtaining the funds is now being completed.

Further information about the project may be obtained by contacting the chairman, or through any of the lodges listed above.

Milk Subsidies causing anxiety

Reduced milk subsidies and increased cheese imports by the Federal Government is causing considerable anxiety and financial loss to dairy farmers, especially those who have spent considerable money, much of it borrowed, to modernize their dairy farms and to increase production.

A meeting in Toronto of the Directors of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, on Wednesday, January 21st, was visited by a delegation of 56 farmers from Prescott and Russell Counties, who seek the assistance of the Federation to strongly protest the action of our Federal Government increasing imports of cheese into Canada to the amount of ten per cent of total consumption.

The Federation in December had strongly protested to the Federal Department of Agriculture on the importation increase. Many speakers at the meeting expressed their opinion that Mr. Eugene Whelan had made a strong representation on behalf of the milk producer, but lost out to the other cabinet ministers, who appear to have no concern for Agriculture.

If you are a milk producer, you have been seriously hit by an inconsiderate government. Write to the Federal Minister of Agriculture, the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and to the Honourable Mr. Pierre E. Trudeau, himself, outlining your position. It may not do any good, but let them know how you have been misled by government information, urging you to increase your production and now to have your income reduced by government imports.

County expects a lot of complaints

Hastings County councilors can look for an increasing number of complaints about the level of service the county will be providing residents this year.

But they can't say they weren't warned about it.

Carl Bateman, the county administrator, has made it quite clear to one and all.

"It goes without saying that the only way we can live within the county council's direction (to hold 1976 spending to no more than a 10 per cent increase over 1975) is to cut back on services and reduce staff.

"These are stern measures and without question there will be an increasing number of complaints about the level of services being provided.

ADDITIONS POPULAR

Tight money hits county building

The tight money situation of the past year really had its effects on construction in Hastings County.

People needing more space didn't sell their homes to buy larger ones in the same number as they had previously, and new residential construction units dipped 17 per cent over 1974 figures.

Faced with higher interest mortgage rates on new dwellings, many people decided to just add on to their existing premises, and residential additions ran 32 per cent ahead of the previous year's total.

Carl Bateman, Hastings County council administrator, told councilors this month that while building and planning fees paid to the county were down during the year, they still surpassed forecasted figures set during council's 1974 budget deliberations.

The county does not provide building and plumbing permit services to the whole county, only those who desire it, and at the present time is serving 12 municipal units representing 15 municipalities.

FLOURISH

Commercial and industrial development flourished despite the tight money. Industrial permits doubling the number issued in 1974 and commercial permits increasing by 80 per cent.

Cottage starts were down sharply, however, falling some 63 per cent.

Sidney Township led the way in development, with 239 residential permits totalling $7,243,370 and 137 residential addition permits totalling $895,437.

There were 23 commercial permits totalling $840,350 and 18 industrial and farm permits totalling $375,560.

Stirling Village had 11 new residential permits totalling $333,455 and 14 residential addition permits totalling $53,040. Five commercial permits totalled $14,100.

Marmora and Lake Townships had 15 new residential permits totalling $363,400, 28 residential additions totalling $144,450 and 14 new cottage permits amounting to $264,100. Commercial permits, four in number, totalled $48,800 and industrial Keep on smiling!

Does it seem your life goes on without a single chance?

Your situation desperate, your mind is in a trance?

Your bills are piling up, your car's not running right.

Your wife just smashed the truck up, the budget's getting tight.

The dog just tore the fence out; the Bell tore out the phone;

Remember, keep on smiling, it's still your loving home.

Wm. S., Madoc.

"If council stands firm in its original commitment we ask for their wholehearted support in dealing with these complaints," Mr. Bateman said.

The administrator has advised all departments, boards and commissioners serving the county that any budget received which has a net effect of increasing the county levy by more than 10 per cent will either be sent back for review or recommended against when council finally deliberates their overall budget at the end of March.

Further to the notice, the administrator has been directed by council's personnel committee to freeze the total compliment of the county staff effective immediately.

"It goes without saying," notes Mr. Bateman, "that the only way we can live within the county council's direction is to cut back on services and staff. This was the reason behind the personnel committee's recommendation to freeze the total compliment of county staff but we are as well relying somewhat on attrition to reduce staff.

"In each and every case where a resignation occurs," Mr. Bateman concluded, "the position is closely evaluated as to whether or not that replacement has to be made."

CONCILIATION OFFICER APPOINTED

County strike possible after report

Inside technical and clerical employees of the Hastings County council can legally go on strike 14 days after a conciliation officer files his report.

But Calvin White, chairman of the county council's personnel committee, says "we sincerely hope this will not happen."

The workers, members of Local 1665, Canadian Union of Public Employees, along with members of Local 1133 CUPE (employees at the Hastings Manor), have been in negotiations for some time. But while Local 1665 members can legally walk out at some future date, Local 1133 members can not. They are considered to be performing an "essential service", and if conciliation fails, their dispute with the county will go to arbitration.

Reeve White says he doesn't believe it is proper to release details of the negotiations at this time, but contends the county has "offered them what we understand to be the greater amount of compensation available under the Anti-Inflation Board regulations.

"Practically all of the housekeeping items have been cleared away and the main outstanding issues are monetary in nature."

"We are sorry to report in both cases the unions have chosen not to accept our offer and in each case have applied for conciliation."

While Mr. White says he hopes a strike, or arbitration, will not be necessary, "we feel very strongly as a committee that we must uphold the law which has been proclaimed by our senior levels of government and is enforceable by the anti-inflation board."

Meanwhile, with respect to non-union staff and department head employees, the council has agreed to increase salaries in the six to eight per cent range, with administrator Carl Bateman and other senior department heads getting the lower per cent increases.

A flashback on politics 1975

By Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SF) — Things have gone badly wrong for the Trudeau government in the year just passed.

Parliament opened in January with a triumphant Liberal Party, flushed with a renewed majority mandate, confident that once again Parliament, politics, and Canada were natural success stories for the Liberal Red.

John Turner put through the budget which had caused the defeat of the minority government, and the Throne Speech talked of great things to come. The universe was unfolding on predictable schedule once again — although there did seem to be the odd things amiss with the economy.

Finance Minister Turner and his colleagues embarked on their quest for voluntary restraint from business and labor, and when that didn't work, the government produced another budget in late June which it said was designed to snap the country out of the inflationary cycle.

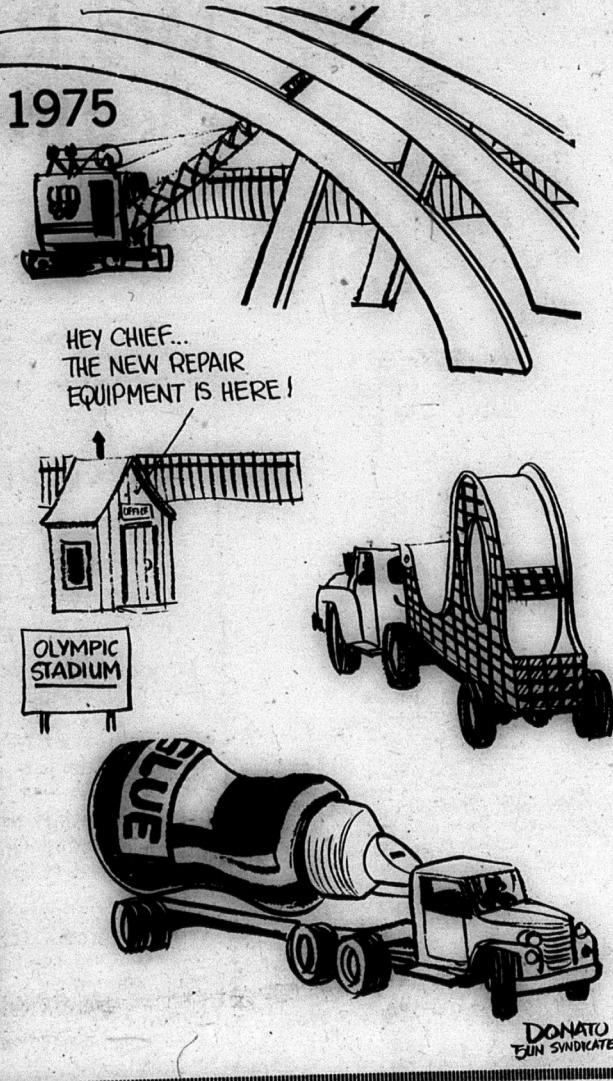

Parliament found itself sitting well into summer to deal with the June budget and diverse other pieces of legislation which were considered necessary before the vacation exodus could be allowed. In spite of gathering economic gloom clouds, by late July there was still that aura of invincibility in Parliament's East Block.

Then came the cracks. John Turner resigned and remained smilingly silent while everyone guessed why he had quit. The government went into several weeks of shock because the dismay in the nation over Turner's departure truly surprised Mr. Trudeau and his other ministers.

Trudeau came out swinging with his new finance minister — Donald Macdonald — and a program of price and wage controls, the very issue upon which the Liberals won their 1974 majority — only then they were fighting on the other side.

There was also the smell of scandal around the government's head late in the year as the Party, for the first time in seven years of opposition, began producing documented evidence that the nation wasn't in the very best of hands. The government's goal late in the year was to hold off demands for a public inquiry until they could get to the Christmas recess.

Meanwhile, the New Democratic Party had chosen Ed Broadbent to replace defeated leader David Lewis, and the Tories were filling their leadership ring with hats so thoroughly that it was hard to see the floor.

BILL SMILEY

Give Flora a shot at it!

By BILL SMILEY

SOME random observations this week on a variety of topics, none of them world-shaking. If you are short of either time or patience, turn to the classified ads for some real entertainment.

For about 10 days over the holidays I had my grandson. Or rather, he had me. At his beck and call. For about 12 hours a day. He's at that very interesting stage where he's learning to talk, fast. You know, putting phrases together, repeating everything he hears, understanding most of what you say, but not yet quite ready to carry on a conversation.

Two phrases, however, he has down pat. The first is: "Come on!" delivered in a peremptory tone and accompanied by a firm grasp of a chubby fist on my index finger. This comes immediately after I have settled down with my paper and a beer and lighted a cigarette. It means he wants assistance in building a pyramid or getting his glass of "dooce" (anything from milk to orange juice) or letting the "ky-cat" in for another session of torture.

What it really means, of course, is that he has a distinct aversion to Grandad retiring from the action.

The second phrase, delivered in a piteous tone, is "Help me" accompanied by a forlorn look and a tug at any portion of my anatomy available. This means he wants me to plug in the tree lights, or hold him up so he can watch the record twirling on the turntable or reach something he can't and wants to break.

WHY DON'T the Conservatives make their leadership race just that? Put the entire 18 or 36 or whatever of them on a track at the summer Olympics, send them off, and the last man to fall flat on his face becomes their leader. It would make just as much sense as choosing them by ballot, which is also a process of finding the guy or gal with the best wind.

Personally, I'd like to see Flora MacDonald have a shot at it. The result might be worse than the massacre of Glencooe, but if 50 per cent of the voters are women, it would give them a chance to stand up and be counted. And I think it would terrify Pierre T.

One guy I would hate to see win the leadership would be Paul Hellyer. If he won it, the Tories could kiss their hopes goodbye for another decade. Here's his record. Liberal cabinet minister; ran for Liberal leadership, lost, sulked, resigned as minister; formed his own rightist Action Canada party, a total flop; joined Conservative party; undistinguished Tory MP; lost his seat in 1974. If the Tories chose him as leader, it would illustrate nothing more than their unquenchable belief in the infallible powers of lake oil as a remedy.

Still on politics, I was sorry to see Dave Barrett lose in B.C. He has one of those qualities so carefully hidden by most politicians — a sense of humor. Maybe he went too far too fast, but he added a lot of zest to the national political scene.

And speaking of the Olympics, I learn without horror and, sadly, without surprise, that the Quebec government has diverted some 400 million dollars from the James Bay project to bail out the 1976 Olympics. How does that grab you? And that's only a drop in the big bucket with the bigger hole in the bottom.

SOMETHING that rather shook me was the widespread hatred of teachers that emerged when Toronto high school teachers went on strike. I don't think the word is too strong.

At a time when doctors were noisily demanding more money, teachers were accused, virulently, violently, and viciously, of being "unprofessional" in going on strike. The strike was perfectly legal, yet the teachers were called everything but child-molesters.

Letters to the editor ran about 90 per cent against teachers. Columnists and editorial writers made no attempt to be objective, and used warped figures, arrant sentimentality, personal vindictiveness and appeals to the emotions to turn the public against teachers. Strange.

I can understand some of it as pure resentment. I pity the mother whose entire social life is disrupted by a couple of hulking teenagers hanging around the house when they should be in school.

students, heading for higher education, who lost a couple of months. And for the working parents who have to go out and leave the house at the mercy of that 16-year-old lump lying in bed.

But I can't quite understand, and don't now, hate any of my teachers.

I felt sorry for some of them. We could make Miss Graydon, our French teacher, cry at the drop of a chapeau. Poor Dr. Wheatley, with a Ph.D. in science, couldn't keep order. But I admired some of them, like Old Flem, with whom I still communicate, and who has challenged me to a ski cross-country race. And I almost loved some. Old Mary Walker, who used to strap me three times a week. Laura Walker, my first-grade teacher, gentle, kind, bright. Katie Johnston, who instilled in me a love of literature.

Not a sadist or a bully or a sneak among the lot of them. Strange, that hatred.

TODAY'S HEALTH

Depression is natural - talking often helps

by David Woods

The dictionary defines depression as "dejection of spirits."

That's something we all feel from time to time, and it's entirely natural; after all, if we assume that what goes up must come down, a continued state of elation is impossible.

But depression that persists, the "blues" that go on too long . . . that's when you need to seek some kind of professional lift.

Depression can be caused by a number of occurrences, such as loneliness, bereavement, financial or employment worries, marital and family difficulties. The early warning signs may be lack of sleep, loss of appetite, or a general sluggishness in physical or mental function.

Some people are better able to cope with it than others; but for everyone suffering from depression, communication — talking things out — is the first step toward putting matters right.

Sometimes, if you recognize that the depression is more than a passing feeling of gloominess about the weather, or over an argument with the boss, it's helpful to chat with close friends or family. If you feel that the problem requires medical help, arrange counselling sessions with your family doctor.

Your own doctor may be able to help you get to the root of the problem, or may prescribe some of the anti-depressant drugs as a temporary measure, or refer you to a specialist. Anti-depressant drugs, which have been available since the mid-1950s, have helped many sufferers.

The solution lies in being honest enough to discern that depression has gone on too long, or has sunk unusually low — and to seek treatment.

If you can pinpoint the cause, as, for example, in the case of recent widowhood, it's helpful to find someone who has undergone the same experience, and talk it out with them. Increasingly, self-help groups are being formed for this very purpose, and you can usually find out about them from local social agencies or church groups.

If no such self-help group exists — start one. It will probably help your depression, and other people's as well.

PUNCH LINE OF THE WEEK

As you see it

We've financed an educational hoax

Dear Editor,

As Minister of Education in the 1960's, Bill Davis ushered in an era of unbridled educational spending. The number of universities doubled and community colleges sprang up in every area of Ontario. Associated with the public and high schools, endless support systems developed; audio-visual material, course supplies, analysts, supervisors, designers, planners, centralizers; you name it, it became an everyday part of the 117 boards in Ontario. The costs of education went on a seemingly endless upward expense curve. We talked about the era of education, its importance, its integral role in the community, its needs in a sophisticated society, its individual catering to nurture the whims of every child. We listened to the Hall Dennis report. We heard about the concept of ongoing education from the cradle to the grave. We were going to be the most educated jurisdiction in the world whether we liked it or not.

We spent more and more on people and resources. But the more money we spent on education the more the quality of essential learning seemed to drop. It seemed in those days to be more important to spend the money than to educate the children. Now, in 1976, groups from every walk of life question the ability of even high school or university graduates to read, write and to calculate with adequate skills. For 10 to 15 years we built a gigantic system, a monument, an institution, a concept. We overspent and missed the educational goal at the same time.

Now financial cut backs and new valves are making an about face and kicking the system in the teeth. The recent shortage of money has made the Ontario planners change their values. Education will be forced to compete for its share of the budget instead of receiving the money by divine right. This is now a healthy situation.

What I am afraid of now is that we may have gone too far in the other direction. Education is for the children. The children are taught by the teachers, they learn from the teachers' skills. The teacher-student relationships are the essence of learning. Everything beyond the relationship is a frill. It would be so easy now to save millions by reducing the number of teachers. If we save anything from the old system it must be the pupil-teacher ratio. What I propose is that we cut everything else first.

We might begin by reducing the over $30,000 in the county budget for executive travel allowances; anything that does not directly effect the child in the classroom.

We must ask the provincial government how it could have systematically led 200,000 educational employees in Ontario down the garden path? How could the provincial government have taken its educational employees and the educational system so far astray? How can a government that has planned such a long term expense suddenly say, "Oh, oh, we're out of money!"

The immensity of the error in their plan is almost impossible to believe. We, the taxpayers of Ontario, have financed an educational hoax. It is probably the biggest snow job in Ontario's history. As a taxpayer I regret paying so much for this error and I shall enjoy paying less for educational services in the future (albeit, more for land tax). As a citizen, I shall be leery of the effect on educators in the future. As a parent, I shall worry about the effects on the educational standards in our schools.

But, once we recognize the gigantic error that has been made over the last 10 years by the provincial government, we must ensure for the sake of our youth that cutbacks are in the proper places. We must make sure that the truly educational parts of the system are not cut. Much soul searching will take place as the budget tightens. I ask all of you to actively engage in this new revolution of the educational system now going on. We can develop a quality, nuts and bolts educational system in Ontario, but we must do it with care.

OPEN EVENINGS

Dave Hobson,
1975 Hastings-Peterborough Liberal Candidate.

Is Lewis right that his stand against kids won't hurt him come election time?

Earlier this month, after a full day of debating the emergency teachers' bill, to send Toronto teachers back to work, Stephen Lewis sauntered alone along the first floor corridor of Queen's Park wearing heavy gloves, a long woollen scarf but no overcoat to fend off the biting cold wind and snow outside.

He was on his way home after what he considered a successful day but stopped long enough to say, "You know, we've always opposed compulsory arbitration and it hasn't cost us a vote yet."

That may be of great comfort to him as he sanctimoniously explains to people why he voted against sending the kids back to school. Especially at election time, when he and his 15 Toronto MPPs are asked, as they campaign door to door, just why they voted against ending the two-month strike.

Lewis may be hard-pressed to explain, after admitting negotiations had gone as far as they reasonably could, why he and his entire NDP caucus still called for the reopening of negotiations, a compromise which was a sham in principle and an absurdity in practice.

Surely this was a time to abandon political posturing and bail out the 140,000 kids who were innocent victims of the intransigence of the teachers and the school boards.

Bill Davis, Bob Nixon, both did that. Lewis didn't.

Who is this man Lewis who would hope to be premier but is not big enough to set aside his rhetoric and admit that in this case, as opposed to other strikes, his arguments were simply fatuous?

Perhaps Lewis is justified in his smugness. Maybe he's right that his stand against the kids won't hurt him come election time. I don't believe people are really that stupid but Lewis seems to think they are.

It says a lot that Lewis, who was afraid to allow some of his more doctrinaire leftwingers to speak in the debate, has the nerve to stand in the Legislature after voting against the bill and declare how difficult it was for the NDP to stand on principle.

What principle? The only visible principle was one of trying to con the public by being expedient while appearing highly principled.

It's sheer arrogance. The nerve to declare, in effect, that while it was difficult for the NDP, it was easy for the Tories and Liberals to solve the strike.

It's an attempt by Lewis to perpetuate the myth, too often blithely reported by the media, that if nothing else, the NDP, by God, is the only party of principle.

Stephen Lewis is as routinely expedient as anybody. The only difference is he feigns sincerity better. He has been known to muster up instant tears, presumably to elicit sympathy and divert attention from the hypocrisy of his rhetoric.

Lewis wants the teachers to love him, so he opposed the bill. He wants the parents and students to love him so he called for an end to the strike. He spoke of the harm the strike has done and yes, hopefully at a moment when his beloved teachers weren't listening, he even said the teachers didn't always behave well in the strike.

He pleaded, as only he can, for an end to the strike, then brazenly voted against the bill that would end it.

He can explain that away all he wants but the fact is Lewis and his entire gang voted against ending the strike. He can say he offered an alternative but it was a shallow one and he knows it. His position was phony and would have solved nothing.

The worst thing is that Lewis feels safe enough to display total contempt for the general public. How else can we explain his offhand remarks that it doesn't really matter because it won't cost him any votes anyway? What he is saying to you is that you're too bloody stupid to remember, which makes it possible for him to appease the teachers who WILL remember, while only temporarily upsetting you, since you'll forget about it in a little while anyway.

Hypocritical to the end, Lewis made yet another impassioned speech after voting against the bill on second reading, just before voting against it again on third reading. He called the NDP position "a terribly difficult wrench" in party principle.

Hay's converter granted recognition

Agriculture Canada recently granted formal recognition to the first livestock breed ever developed by private Canadian interests.

Registration certificates for the new beef cattle breed, the Hays' Converter, are being issued by Canadian National Livestock Records after 23 years of development by Senator Hays.

The Rug Doctor
Rug & Upholstery
Steam Cleaning

He was so outrageously hypocritical that Davis, for the first time in his political career, was moved to reply on third reading. "It is great to say...and express concern about the students, at the same time as you have opposed the bill that will put the schools back to work.

"It is great to say...how tough it is for you to rationalize your position as though it wasn't difficult for members in this party or in the Liberal party to deal with these complicated issues...Believe it or not, the premier on occasion has reasons to be provoked by the teaching profession.

"I have never attacked the quality of teachers in this province - they are good teachers, and if you people think that you are coming down on the side of being the only ones concerned about the quality or how this system functions in Toronto, you have got another thought coming to you."

And that, Stephen Lewis, is the truth. People WILL remember it.

Well, well, the famous rent control plan appears to be in trouble.

It seems that there are so many people trying to find out what it all means that it's creating such a mammoth, not to mention costly, bureaucracy that Housing Minister John Rhodes, a man never averse to passing his troubles along to his friends, has ducked out and left an ever-so-reluctant Consumer Affairs Minister Sid Handelman in charge.

Handelman who has had heart problems in the past, was asked if he checked with his doctor before accepting the responsibility of administering the rent control law. He replied: "It wasn't voluntary, believe me."

That's the same law that Handelman once said - before it was the law - would create a bureaucratic nightmare.

The fact that he was prophetic in that, however, hasn't saved him from being saddled with it.

It has in fact been such a disaster for the government that a recent briefing sounded more like an apology to the public than anything else.

As you know, rent control was instituted largely as a result of the failure of Premier Davis to respond to a series of exaggerated charges leveled during the last election campaign by Stephen Lewis.

The Tories did not want it but they looked at their vote totals in Toronto and figured the general public wanted it, so they reversed their earlier stated positions and introduced rent control as the magic formula to end the housing dilemma.

The fact that rent control will, as it has everywhere it's been tried, reduce construction of new rental units in a market where there already is a shortage, is freely admitted by any Tory MPP you care to name.

But that of course didn't stop them and the Liberals who admit the same short-comings, from joining with the socialists to approve what is likely the most confusing piece of legislation this place has ever seen.

Even as you read this, the rent control people at Queen's Park are receiving 3,000 telephone calls a day and 3,000 pieces of mail a week, from people who are totally confused by it all.

Naturally, rent control - actually, the government likes to call it rent review, presumably so people will think there's a little of the old Tory left in them - was instituted on the pretext of keeping rent increases down.

According to Lewis who as it turns out was completely unfettered by facts, most of those nasty old landlords out there were gouging their tenants at a horrendous rate, making increases of 30, 40 and 50 per cent commonplace.

The fact that the government had in its possession a study of rents which showed about three per cent of the tenants were in fact being gouged, somehow didn't get through to the public because the politicians, in the midst of an election, didn't think it was good politics to admit that yes, there were some tenants getting ripped off.

As a result then, we got the Tories shifting from a hastily-thought-out position in mid-campaign to attack the actual gougers, to a panic-stricken piece of legislation which ultimately punishes everyone.

Not only will you, tenant or not, have to help pay the $7 million price tag this year to set this madness in motion, but, we had the startling revelation from no less than D.A. Crosbie, deputy minister of housing, that rent review may well end up costing tenants more rent than they would have paid without it.

Think about it. You've got the great socialist scheme to keep rents down and punish the landlords but what it turns out to be in practice is a scheme to increase rents for many tenants, confuse everybody and still, when all is said and done, leaves the tenant with the responsibility, and the cost, to take the landlord to court if he is in contravention of the law.

Handelman of course insists that the law is temporary anyway - 18 months - or otherwise he wouldn't have anything to do with it. "Beyond that, it would be counter-productive."

But Crosbie, a little more realistic in the face of a burgeoning bureaucracy which should hit 675 employees in 36 offices across Ontario by the spring, said "experience has shown in other jurisdictions it is easier to start one of these laws than it is to terminate it."

Crosbie also said that rents in British Columbia, where there was rent control, increased more on average than rents in Ontario without controls, simply because the rental guideline - eight per cent here - becomes the minimum.

In other words, under normal circumstances there are many landlords who either don't raise their rent at all or raise it slightly, who will now raise it eight per cent automatically. And, if they've got a good lawyer, chances are they can talk their way into higher rents to meet the rising costs, much of those imposed by this same government.

Inventors running out of ideas?

Claude Bennett, Ontario's minister of industry and tourism, thinks Canadian inventors run out of ideas when it comes to publicizing their own inventions.

To help with such promotion, Bennett has invited inventors to contact his ministry so their patented devices can be put on public display at a Manufacturing Opportunities show in the Queen Elizabeth Building at Toronto's Exhibition Park from May 4-6. Representatives of the business community are expected to attend and Bennett said inventors can arrange to meet with them during the show.

CROP INSURANCE PAYOUTS

The number of 1975 crop insurance payments to Canadian farmers indicate that most producers had good crops last year.

Agriculture Canada's Crop Insurance Division estimates that from $97 million in premiums paid in 1975, only about $50 million will be paid out in claims.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Marketing boards are here to stay only if farmers are willing to fight for them.

Does that statement sound familiar? It has been said many times in this corner and is being said by many others connected either directly or indirectly with agriculture.

But it needs to be said again; peated and repeated, as it were.

Marketing boards are under fire from many sectors including the Consumers Association of Canada and by Beryl Plumptre of the anti-inflation review board. She seems to have the chairman of the board, Jean-Luc Pepin, brainwashed to believe that marketing boards are out to rip off the food-buying public, too.

Back in November, the first sentence in this column was identical to this week's. Farmers are going to have to fight to keep what they have in the way of orderly marketing.

It is refreshing to see that the Ontario Commodity Council is girding its loins for battle. For many years, it was a sort of toothless organization with representatives from 16 of the province's more than 40 marketing boards as members.

As far as I know, the board members met when they felt like it and didn't do much of anything but pass an innocuous budget to promote the member marketing boards. Recently, though, the council has taken on new life.

Much of the life comes from a big, gruff guy called Jim Boynton, for almost 20 years the secretary-manager of the Ontario Pork Producers Marketing Board. Jim made a few enemies during his tenure on the pork board but he made a host of friends. His ability as a co-ordinator cannot be questioned. He is organizing a concerted attack against those who would scuttle one or any of the marketing boards in Ontario.

One of his best moves in the new job was to prepare a letter and a 12-page public relations and publicity document to acquaint editors across this province with information on marketing boards.

As faithful readers of this corner know, the policies of most major daily papers in Ontario have been to ignore farmers and farm problems most of the time. Only when food prices increase do they take the trouble to investigate. And then they usually come up with the wrong answers.

Whether most daily newspaper people will take the time to read Mr. Boynton's information is doubtful. They should, mind you, but knowing a great many of those editors, I have my doubts.

The commodity council has a budget of $240,000 to spend on such projects. Mr. Boynton is not asking for unconfirmed support of marketing boards. All he wants is that editors and agricultural writers make a telephone call or two before sounding off about farmers, food prices and marketing boards.

It seems a reasonable request. Reporters and editors are supposed to be fair-minded men. They are supposed to get both sides of any controversy before printing a story.

Before printing or broadcasting attacks against such organizations, give those organizations a chance to refute the attacks.

Farmers and farm organizations need some kind of co-ordination. For too long, they have been tramping along their own merry way without explaining or justifying their actions. This is not to suggest that they are out only for themselves and will willingly embark on a program to rip off the buying public. It is only suggesting that their fierce independence over the years has got them into hot water many times through misunderstandings.

They need some one or some organization to let everybody know where they stand. Only 40 or 50 years ago, almost everyone had some understanding of farmers and farming but that is not true today. Only about five per cent of the population of Canada is now directly involved in farming and that five per cent must learn to become a vocal minority.

It is too late to sit back and let George do it. George doesn't live here any more. The old-fashioned picture of a farmer wearing bib overalls, carrying a couple of slop pails across the manureyard to feed the hogs is so far out of date that it is a joke. But, unfortunately, a great many people still have this idea of farmers.

It's going to be a long, hard, tough battle to change a lot of minds because farmers are fighting huge food chains, well-organized protest associations, well-educated and professional public relations people and a buying public frantically looking for a scapegoat for inflation.

So good luck to the Ontario Commodity Council. And Jim: If you have an extra copy of that document of yours, I would like to have one. I had to borrow one.

Reducing Codling Moth numbers

An effective means of reducing codling moth populations has been developed from what started as a monitoring system for moth members.

An entomologist at the Agriculture Canada Kentville, N.S., Research Station, discovered that traps baited with a synthetic sex attractant - and hung in apple trees to monitor the pest's activity - were reducing infestation. The traps are now being used as a control method for the pest which bores holes in ripening apples while in the larval stage.

Muskoka winter carnival offers the unusual

When was the last time you participated in a run-a-bed contest, or played a game of golf in the middle of January? These are just two of the unusual events planned for this year's Muskoka Winter Carnival which runs Jan. 26 to Feb. 1 in the Ontario towns of Gravenhurst, Bracebridge and Huntsville.

That's another thing that's different about this carnival. It takes place in all three Muskoka district towns simultaneously. This gives you a chance to see some truly beautiful resort country while travelling the 32 miles from Gravenhurst through Bracebridge to Huntsville to take in the major events.

Muskoka is a popular year-around holiday area approximately 100 miles north of Toronto.

The run-a-bed contest final race takes place in Huntsville on the second carnival Saturday, bringing together the winners of the run-offs held in each town the previous weekend.

Rules specify that each team of five push a standard single bed, made up of a frame, springs and a mattress, a distance of half a mile. Four team members push at each corner of the bed, while the fifth must lie on it, covered with either a blanket or a sleeping bag. Contestants are permitted to change places, but the bed must be stopped until the change is completed. One person must be on the bed at all times.

Beds can be equipped with horns and either wheels, skis or skates, and tripping of opposing team members is allowed.

Ontario resorts please 300,000 skiers each winter

Stu Morrison

There are approximately 300,000 skiers in south-central Ontario and many more thousands living in the United States border areas and all of them, like skiers everywhere, are looking for one thing, the "perfect" ski resort, close to home.

Ontario resorts do offer very enjoyable holidays to those thousands of skiers. Oh, the mountains are not as high as the Rockies, waist-deep powder is rare and there are few picturesque mountain ski villages. But many resorts in Ontario have all the amenities for the near-perfect ski holiday.

Let me tell you about a few of my favorite resorts.

The biggest and the closest resort for Torontonian and Detroiter alike is Blue Mountain Winter Park, located at Collingwood, 90 miles north of Toronto.

Its string of trails and lifts stretch for three miles along a 700-foot-high promontory facing Georgian Bay. And it can truly be termed the "complete" Ontario ski resort. There are six chairlifts; the most recent installation handles three skiers per chair with a capacity of 1,800 skiers per hour - two T-bars, five poma lifts and 4 rope tows.

On the busiest day, the area can handle 6,000 skiers.

As for terrain, it varies from the expert runs, such as the FIS-rated Calamity Lane, to an easy one-and-a-half-time run from the top for the novice. Be sure to take a trail map as there are 24 runs and wide, well-groomed open slopes to choose from.

Ski conditions anywhere can go from fantastic to terrible with an unseasonable mild spell, but the Blue Mountain management has gone almost as far as it can go to correct Mother Nature's goofs. Two-thirds of the 3-mile-wide area is serviced by snow-making equipment: 10 miles of buried pipeline, a lake that holds 25,000 gallons of water and 12 huge snowguns. The system is capable of firing 100 gallons of water per minute into the cold air - and at -7 degrees C (about 20 degrees F) produces one foot of snow over an acre, every two hours.

If lessons are to be included in the visit, there are 50 ski instructors directed by Ernie McCulloch. In keeping with the latest technique, they teach the East Short Progression Method and McCulloch's credentials are a Canadian record. He has won six national and four North American Championships, two Harriman Cups, in 1969 was elected to the United States Hall of Fame and is a lifetime member of the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance.

The Blue Mountain Lodging Association has all the information of where to stay and what to do after the ski day. The Association is made up of hotels, and lodges representing close to 700 rooms in the Collingwood area, from low cost dormitories to the new 80-room Holiday Inn.

There are many choices of holiday packages which include lift tickets, lessons, accommodation and apres-ski entertainment. Rates vary from a dorm-weekend at about $35 to a deluxe five-day ski week at around $150. Group rates are also available for lifts and lessons, particularly for midweek skiers.

The telephone number for information is (705) 445-0748.

Driving to Blue Mountain Winter Park is comparatively easy. Skiers in the Windsor-Detroit area take the four-lane Macdonald-Cartier Highway (401) to Toronto; those in the Buffalo-Hamilton districts use the multi-lane Queen Elizabeth Way to Toronto. From Toronto to Barrie it's a pleasant ride on the six-lane 70-mile-an-hour expressway, and Blue Mountain is about half an hour from Barrie on Highway 26.

Thunder Bay is one of the very few North American cities situated in such a geographical oddity - it's located on the shores of Lake Superior, in the northern mid-continent flat lands - but fortunately for skiers, there are mountains in the suburbs. Five resorts offer excellent novice and expert terrain just minutes, not hours, from downtown Thunder Bay. These five resorts draw skiers by the thousands from Winnipeg, Toronto-Hamilton, Minneapolis-St. Paul and many other towns and cities on both sides of the border.

What nature did eons ago, man has improved on. A multi-million dollar improvement and expansion program; in all five resorts, resulted in new lift systems, modern base facilities, new trails

Candy Mountain is the latest addition to Thunder Country skiing, and would you believe that in its early days some Thunder Bay residents were heard to complain that it was too far away from the city. The driving time from the center of town is 20 minutes and line-ups are either non-existent or short, even on weekends.

Candy Mountain has joined forces with Lock Lomond and offers an inter-changeable tow ticket; together the two resorts have four chair lifts and three T-bars, ski-rentals and repairs at the two pro shops, night skiing and licensed lounges in the base lodges.

Carl Whittier heads up a ski school of Certified CSIA instructors as well as the Cliff Taylor GLM school, the only one of its kind in Canada.

At Loch Lomond, the three Irvine Boys who skied on Canada's National Team probably practised on a run called the Giant, a steep, mogully pitch that runs under a chair lift. I found that yells of encouragement from the passengers didn't really help me on the way down.

The novice has a gentle private trail that takes more than a mile to wind down from the top.

Mount McKay, owned and operated by the Fort William Indian Band, is located

There's a lot more cross-country skiers these days

How many cross-country skiers are there in Canada?

"A sight more than there used to be," mused a Canadian Ski Marathon official last winter, as a seemingly endless line of gliders whisked by to disappear beyond the crest of a distant hill.

The annual Canadian Ski Marathon is a 100-mile, two-day tour for both competitors and recreational skiers between Lachute and Hull, Quebec. The tour attracted more than 2,000 skiers in 1975 and hundreds more were unable to participate because of overnight accommodation in the area limited the number of entrants.

Nordic, cross-country or trail skiing continues to attract new devotees, not only from the book and boob-tube brigade, but new converts are being won from snowmobilers, snowshoers and even the sneers of the die-hard downhillers, particularly on slope-crowded weekends, have turned to cheers.

More resorts than ever are offering either complete cross-country ski package vacations or at least a one-day ski touring option with their regular alpine ski weeks. Airlines such as CP Air and Air Canada now include full package vacation offers to the Nordic set.

Air Canada's initial cross-country Skifari package to Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper, Alberta offers the splendor of the Canadian Rockies as a backdrop for their trail-skiing clientele. Included are six nights and seven days, two half-days (5 hours) of guiding and instruction, maps and trail briefings by certified mountain guides. A Tilden rented car with 450 free miles (gas extra) is available at Calgary's Airport. Such a package with accommodation at Chateau Lake Louise and return airfare to Toronto, for example, costs $304 per person, double occupancy.

Air Canada's Quebec program lists cross-country ski options at such well known Laurentian resorts as Parker's Lodge, Sun Valley Hotel Suisse, Hotel L'Esterel, Le Pinoteau and Cuttle's Tremblant Club.

In the Outaouais region near Ottawa, cross-country options are offered at the Swiss Alpine Motel at Mont-Sainte-Marie and Sheraton Le Marquis in Hull, Quebec.

Quebec City is already known for fine restaurants, its winter carnival (Feb. 5-15) and of course, the big downhill runs at Mont-Sainte-Anne. What may be news to many, including Nordic skiers, is the 200-mile network of cross-country trails in the surrounding mountains that make Quebec City one of the most active trail-skiing areas in Canada.

just three miles south of the Thunder Bay International Airport. Its up-hill facilities include three chair lifts, a T-bar, Poma lift and a rope tow. There are 24 trails and slopes, seven of which are equipped for night skiing.

A skier can pretty well figure for himself which is which, when confronted with trails called Death Valley or Chicken Out...or Skylark and Fox Trot. There is no problem, of course, as all trails are clearly marked by degrees of difficulty.

Mount Norway had been known, until last season, as a relatively small area with well laid out intermediate trails, a monster known as the Thunder Bowl run, a beginners' trail over one-and-a-half miles long and skiing from mid-November to April.

Mount Norway's claim to fame is changing...it's the site of one of the best ski-jumping complexes in the world. The 90 and 70-metre jumps were officially opened last season with the Canadian Jumping Championships and 2,000 spectators turned up to watch the action. In March, the International Competition drew teams from Japan, Switzerland, West Germany and United States, and of course, Canada. The people of Thunder Bay and Canada generally have reason to be proud of this $500,000 undertaking.

Mount Baldy is the resort on the other side of town. About 16 miles to the east, the 650 vertical foot mountain is serviced, by one chair lift, three rope tows, a poma lift and one T-bar. Skiers have a choice of 13 trails spread across two miles of slopes.

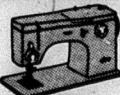

The increasing number of skiers visiting Thunder Bay was followed almost immediately by a hotel building boom. Since 1972 three hotel-motels have been created; the Alpine, Landmark and Red Oak Inn.

THE FAMILY of the late William J. Rollins wish to express their appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbours for the many expressions of sympathy during our recent loss of a father and grandfather.

IN MEMORIAMS

MILLER - In loving memory of a dear sister Amelia Miller.
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by sister Charlotte Vilneff.

HAUGHTON - In loving memory of Roddy and Patricia who passed away Jan. 21st, 1973.
No one can write, no tongue can tell our sad and bitter loss,
But God alone has helped so well to bear our heavy cross.
Remembered by Aunt Norma, Gale, Dale and Carol Lynn.

JESUS IS BAPTIZED

Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him.

But John forbad him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness. Then he suffered him.

And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straight way out of the water: and lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him.

YOUR STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): Differences to settle could involve the clinical versus the compassionate. You may want to stay aloof and keep a hands-off policy. Let your sense of right lead you. Week tiptoes off.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Week begins with a flourish. Romance waltzes in; don't expect it to boogie. Be prepared for a change; you may not be crazy about it, but it has its advantages. Try to work with the tide instead of against it.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Express your views with an eye to practicality. This will go farther to impress people now than an ivory tower approach. A flash of the new or different? Fine. Just be sure it's workable. Make the most of several fine aspects to do your own thing.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Your powers of understanding may be put to the test. Don't keep emotions bottled up inside. Do pull the cork in a positive and constructive manner. Someone close to you does not appear to be sensitive; but in reality, his feelings are easily hurt. Go easy, Moonbeam.

LEO (7/23-8/22): Friendly persuasion gets your week off to a flying start. You may be feeling adventurous and ready for something new with no holds barred. How about a new love affair? All you have to do is give the nod.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): If romance sees you or your partner with cool feet, don't force the issue. Lots of TLC gradually gets them toasty warm. Later, keep emotions intact if need to help arises. Week slips away.

LIBRA (9/23-10/22): Recheck plans for activities around home — you may have overlooked a point. Love takes center stage to a surprise plot and rave reviews. Later, a step in the right direction puts you in the money.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): Unsettling influences may bring rapid changes in feelings. Watch your famous Scorpio stinger — don't let it get out of hand. Restlessness at home could make you yearn for new scenery. Later, sizzling romance from out of the blue.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Unexpected cash could come your way. Wait 'til next week to decide how to spend it. An unconventional proposition gives you something to think about. Then, a chance encounter may turn out to be more than it seems.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): The fruit is ripe for the plucking. You may have to find a novel way to get it off the tree — like maybe skyhooks — whatever, it's worth it. Look for a friend with his hand out. Shake it, but don't cross his palm with silver. Sweet dreams complete your week.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): You can be as elusive as quicksilver, as difficult to catch as a wraith. However, right now your passions may be running so high that you make a commitment almost before you realize it.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): A favor may be returned in a way you didn't expect, but a very pleasing way just the same. Secrets are also on the agenda, so don't be surprised if one suddenly pops out. Inspiration comes on like a spotlight and love glows.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I'm in love with this guy. Everyone is telling me I must be nuts to love a guy he doesn't know that I love him. The only time I see him is when I'm in school. Then, I feel like running up to him and putting my arms around him, and telling him how much I love him. I found out that he's going to marry a girl that he doesn't love, and I know that she doesn't love him. Could you help me find a way to let him know how much I love him?"

OUR REPLY:

Canned Fruits

For desserts, you may prefer fruit canned in heavy syrup. For salads, fruit canned in light syrup or in its own juice is just as good. The syrup or liquid can be used in gelatin salads or desserts without adding too much sweetness. Water-pack fruits and fruits canned with non-nutritive sweeteners help dieters cut calories.

THE TURRETS are trying to make a comeback! Who are the Turrets, you say? Well, they're not entertainers. And no, they are not sportsmen either. Turrets are cigarettes - a popular brand away back in the late 1930s and 1940s. One of the reasons for their popularity was their price - you could get 22 of them for a couple of dimes, while most other brands were selling at 20 smokes for 20 cents.

Turrets, now on the stands in most centres, are again selling for less - about four cents less on a package of 20 and five cents less on a pack of 25.

Imasco Ltd., the Dominion's biggest tobacco company, is packaging the cigarettes in a no-frills package and is virtually not advertising them.

The savings are being passed on to the customer, and the company hopes, people will go for them because of the smaller cost.

Time will tell.

EVER WONDER what happened to George Gomme, our former Ontario Minister of Highways?

He's alive and well, thank you, and living in Almont, Ont. While he is supposed to be retired, he is far from it.

George is a licensed Lay Reader in the Anglican Church, a regional director of the Marney Patterson Crusade, is in the Ring Council for Camp Farthest Out and is at present also taking (and enjoying) a special course in Ottawa.

He will be coming to Trenton Saturday, January 31, to address a breakfast meeting of the Christian Fellowship at the new Columbus Centre, is looking forward to the visit and is hopeful of meeting many of his old friends.

DID YOU KNOW that Canada's world championship figure skater Karen Magnusson is known as the "girl with the iron gut"?

Seems hardly fitting for a gal so soft, feminine and pretty.

She was first handed the tag when she refused to give up her determination to win the world title after being scratched the preceding year because of a leg injury. And it has stuck with her ever since.

Karen is now starring in her third season as headliner with the all-new Ice Capades production which plays in the Peterborough Memorial Centre February 5 to 8. Love and marriage, she says, will have to wait until after she has abandoned her full time career.

Being on the road, she explains, doesn't allow time for developing meaningful relationships.

OUR RECENT COLUMN on the trials and tribulations befalling Keith Anderson, the new general manager of the five paper community newspaper group running from Hastings to Madoc proved somewhat of a tonic for an R. R. 1, Kaladar, reader.

The column told about Keith being beset with hydro, water, telephone, heating and window problems, in rapid fire order, that left him wondering if there was anything left that could happen next.

"Did all those things really happen?" Agnes Gillette asks, in a letter to the writer. "If they did (and yes, Agnes, they really did) I don't think I am going to feel so bad when things go wrong for me."

"Our dog got caught in a trap three different times. We had to have our little kitten put to sleep, then our Tom left home for 10 days and returned in such a terrible condition that the vet could not save him. We just had word yesterday that he had to be put to sleep too."

THIS COLUMN, by the way, now appears in 10 community newspapers. The Picton Gazette and the Amhurstview Heritage have now joined Belleville Citizen, Tweed News, Stirling News-Argus, Madoc Review, Marmora Herald, Havelock Citizen, Norwood Register and Hastings Star, in publishing these weekly comments.

We welcome our new readers aboard, and remind each and everyone one of you that your comments (pro and con) on what we've had to say, and ideas for future column topics, are more than welcome. Just mail them to the writer at P. O. Box 515, Marmora, Ontario.

Official county plan approval?

Hastings County's official plan is expected to receive provincial government approval in February.

Felix Browne, chairman of the Hastings County Planning Board, reports that the Hon. John Rhodes, Minister of Housing, has indicated the plan will be in a position to receive his approval at that time.

A delegation consisting of former warden Wm. S. McCrea, Reeve Tom Barton of Madoc, Reeve Calvin White of Dungannon Township, county administrator Carl Bateman, director of planning Niall Carney and Mr. Browne, reeve of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure Townships, met with the minister to review the proposed plan.

"I am pleased to report that we were well received by the minister, and to inform that all issues are now satisfactorily resolved."

Mr. Browne said the board "is indebted to Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings-Peterborough, without whose assistance this successful conclusion to almost five years of work and effort would not have been possible."

Rabies on increase in southern area

A considerable number of cases of rabies have recently been diagnosed in the area of Trenton and neighboring County with both wild and domestic animals being involved.

The public is therefore warned against approaching wild animals and advised to keep their dogs tied and under control.

If a wild animal is shot, it should be shot through the body and not through the head, and the Health of Animals Office in Belleville informed.

A suspicious looking domestic animal should not be shot, but confined, fed and watered for 14 days during which observed or seen by a veterinarian.

In case a human being is involved by being bitten or scratched by an animal, advice of the family physician should be sought and the medical officer of health informed. Ordinary handling of a rabid animal is usually of no importance if there is no saliva deposited on broken skin.

More use should be made of anti-rabies clinics, many of them being poorly attended.
